'Wonderful town' responds

By BILL WINTER
Editor

"This is a marvelous, wonderful town... the way you care about people, and respond to worthwhile causes."

The speaker Wednesday was Dan Dierdorf, widely regarded as the best offensive lineman in professional football. And the location was the Quad-Cities, regarded by the big Big Red athlete and many others as an unusually friendly and compassionate community.

The occasion was a benefit breakfast of the American Cancer Society crusade. A total of 350 attended the event at the Granite City Township Building, and net receipts of the drive have surpassed the $12,000 raised a year ago. The campaign will conclude with a bike-a-thon headed by Joseph Lucido in August.

City Treasurer Nick Petrillo, City Clerk Robert Stevens, firemen, emergency medical technicians, town office staff members, Mrs. Bill Schuler, Mrs. Bernadine Hagnauer, Fire Chief Donald Parente, Police Chief Ronald Veizer and many others volunteered their services to cook and serve the food, arrange tables and perform other tasks related to the breakfast. The entire meal and speaking program were concluded in less than an hour.

Legislators introduced were State Senator Sam Vadalabene and State Representative Sam Wolf, 56th District Democrats.

Dierdorf expressed amazement at the presence of a large and wide-awake

Venice school funding eased

By VALERIE EVENDEN
of the Press-Record

The Venice School District has received a welcome reprieve from losing its Title VII programs that involve about 300 of its 550 students and even hopes to expand the programs in the 1979-80 school year.

The local district, whose serious financial troubles have accelerated the last two years, will receive a total of $354,634, about $79,000 more than was allocated Venice public schools for the same purpose last year. Also relieved will be at least 23 Venice staff members, including eight teachers, a secretary and teacher aides, who were mailed notices of honorable dismissal in March.

The notices will be rescinded upon the district receiving written confirmation

A "white ash" pollutant fallout—the main point of contention involved in a settlement agreement between the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency and Granite City Steel—has not ceased and has occurred as recently as June 30, residents told a public hearing in the city hall here Tuesday night. The complaints were made as EPA officials sought public comment on the agreement announced earlier this week which would settle a two-year-old suit filed by EPA against Granite City Steel. The suit charged the steel firm with air pollution in the emission of a white ash particulate that allegedly damaged cars and homes from Sept. 1 through Nov. 30, 1977.

While the steel firm, the Granite City

Where were you when Skylab hit?

By CATHEY JAMISON
of the Press-Record

Skylab, Skylab, Skylab. It flew. It fell. Kerplow, all gone.

Many are glad that it is all over. They were growing tired of hearing about the ominous pile of space junk.

Two shirts that read "I survived Skylab," hard hats, the wondering if one's home would be mashed under the weight of a metallic fragment—all of the impending doom is finally over.

Be it the will of God or NASA, Skylab has fallen harmlessly into the Indian Ocean off the coast of Australia.

Those wearing those "I survived Skylab" shirts are breathing a lot easier, glad that they remain un-squashed.

Being on the top floor near the window yesterday morning, I was assigned the task of watching for Skylab, lest it take a wrong turn and head in the direction of our town.

I made a remark to Gary Schneider of the Press-Record staff about something I thought I saw, only to find him under his desk, "checking out his wastebasket."

Pete Hayes, sports editor, wore his hard hat all morning and Mick Strange soothed all of our nerves with some selected readings.

The folks down in the composing room were all grateful to the news department for having its office over the composing staff's heads, to cushion the shock in case rumors that "the sky is falling" proved to be true.

After all, the surgeon general had determined that getting conked on the head by Skylab could be hazardous to your health.

The previous afternoon's repair and testing of the Granite City civil defense siren had caused many to run outdoors

Huber heads Port board

By MICK STRANGE

Homer A. Huber, a retired Granite City furniture dealer, was elected chairman of the Tri-City Regional Port District reorganization meeting Monday evening.

He is a past president of the Granite City Board of Education, Associated Retailers and Civic Association, Granite City Rotary Club and Madison County Regional Board of School Trustees.

Huber is replacing John Bellecoff, of Madison, who has been the port board chairman for the past eight years. Bellecoff continues on the board.

Dale Arnette, a board member, was elected treasurer, the position Huber had held.

Former Venice Mayor William M. Ebersold was re-elected as secretary for his third term.

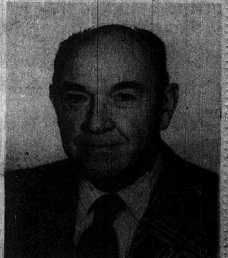

Other members of the board are Lance Callis, Herbert Bischoff and Harold R. Fischer.

The board re-hired Carl Ranft as general manager, a post he has held for 13 years. He has been associated with the port for 20 years and was the first board chairman.

Attorney Randall Robertson was retained as the port attorney. Robertson has also been associated with the port for 20 years.

In other business, the board reviewed the possibility of approving three

Found injured outside lounge

Mrs. Starlen Beesley, 22, of 2100a Delmar Ave., was found by police lying unconscious on the sidewalk in front of Ken's Lounge, 20th Street and Washington Avenue, at 12:15 a.m. Tuesday.

Officers went to the tavern in response to a report a fight was taking place between a man and woman. It was alleged Mrs. Beesley was pushed against a juke box inside the tavern by her husband, Charles M. Beesley, 32, of 2820 Marshall Ave. She suffered a cut to the neck.

As the woman started to leave the lounge with three small children, Beesley allegedly followed her outside, grabbed her, knocking her to the ground. His then left the scene, police said.

Beesley was arrested near the Tri-City Area YMCA at Niedringhaus and Edison avenues.

He was charged with battery and illegal possession of a can of mace.

Mrs. Beesley was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center where she was admitted for observation of a possible skull injury.

CYCLE STOLEN

A 1974 Enduro 100 cc motorcycle was stolen from in front of a home in the 500 block of Margaret Avenue in Mitchell last week. The cycle belongs to Alma Garrett, St. Clair, Mo.

End traffic lights at 203—Collinsville Road

The Illinois Department of Transportation has announced that the traffic signals at the intersection of Illinois Route 203 and Collinsville Road near Fairmont City were removed from operation starting July 9.

After detailed investigation, it was determined that traffic signal operations are no longer justified or warranted at the location, District Engineer Dale L. Klotz said.

Traffic control at the intersection will be accomplished by the placement of standard stop signs and will save the department approximately $2,500 per year, Klotz said.

WORKING ON AUTO

Mrs. Carolyn Lindsey, 31, of 4949 Highway 182, was admitted to St. Elizabeth Medical Center at 8:24 p.m. Sunday suffering bruises to her left thigh, arm and shoulder. The car she was working on accidentally went into gear while she was working on the engine and struck her, police reported.

TAKE MINI-BIKE

A Honda mini-bike valued at $40 was stolen from a garage at the home of Chester Orr, 2023 Fourth St., Madison, late last week. Entry was gained by breaking a garage window.

Sues driver and steel co.

Foster L. Frederick has filed a three-count suit in Madison County Circuit Court against the Granite City Steel Division of National Steel Corp., and Paul L. Boyer.

Frederick alleges he was walking from the employee parking lot near 20th and Nash streets to the plant gate when Boyer's pickup truck turned left from the lot onto 20th Street, striking Frederick.

One count seeks $25,000 from the steel firm for allegedly failing to provide a safe way for employees to enter and leave the plant.

The other two counts seek $25,000 each from Boyer.

Can't be a 'pork barrel' bridge if too shaky for hogs to cross

Alton Telegraph — State legislators and the press corps seldom see things the same way, but they did generally agree this year's session of the General Assembly was one of the quietest in memory.

Most of the big issues like replacement of the corporate personal property tax were, after all, rather ponderous and technical.

The Thompson-Byrne transportation program (versions 1, 2 and 3) did whip Chicago's suburban area legislators into a defensive frenzy, but there were few other major issues to get the juices going.

As Sen. Vince Demuzio observed, it was a session concerned with "a lot of trivia."

The session, in fact, was a holiday for trivia buffs. If one judged the importance of a bill from the length and fury of the floor debate, some of the major legislative issues of the session would include:

—Whether gas stations should be required to provide motorists with free air for their tires.

also produced some memorable bursts of oratory in its logic and use of the English language, including some malapropisms worthy of Archie Bunker.

Sen. Leroy Lemko, D-Chicago, for example, repeatedly used the word "thence" (I can only assume that's how you spell it because I couldn't find it listed in any dictionary) while debating a bill to regulate abortion clinics.

Rep. Tom Hanahan, D-McHenry, showed how to turn old clichés into new ones when he complained about legislators who "talk out of both sides of their heads."

Rep. Tom McMaster, R-Galesburg, argued an appropriation for repairing a bridge in his district couldn't be considered a "pork barrel" project because the bridge in question was in such bad shape truckloads of hogs wouldn't cross it.

Assistant House Majority Leader Rep. Gerald Bradley, D-Bloomington, had a quick reply when Rep. Donald Totten complained about "ghost voting" (members pushing the vote switch for absent colleagues).

"Rep. Totten would like all the members that aren't here to push my switch back to present," Bradley announced as he presided at the podium.

A short time later, Rep. "Pete" Peters of Chicago suggested, to make it even easier for Totten, "all those who aren't here should just raise their hands."

Sen. Adeline Geo-Karis, R-Zion, during a committee hearing on a bill proposing a moratorium on building new nuclear power plants, argued they were needed to defend the U.S. against attacks from the Chinese.

She didn't explain how we were to push our switches back to present.

this goofy bill out of the record."

Rep. Ronald Grieseheimer's self-proclaimed "economic war" kept the House chuckling for three days at the end of June.

Field Marshal Grieseheimer, who called himself the "Prairie Fox," was called upon each morning by the "commander-in-chief," House Speaker William Reimold, for reports from the front on his efforts to repel invaders from Wisconsin, Indiana, Kansas and Mississippi from hurling away Illinois business.

One day, Grieseheimer appeared with a World War II army jacket and officer's Bismarckian helmet for Reimold and similar attire for other House members he appointed as "generals."

Rep. Jim McPike of Alton, a former Navy fighter pilot, was put in charge of the air force to lead an attack on the Mississippi coast. McPike accepted the commission with an unusual impression of himself as a general.

The entertainment highlight of the session, though, was the command performance of Rep. John Cullerton, D-Chicago.

Cullerton had been crowned "Mr. Wonderful" at a charity fundraiser organized by women legislators earlier.

Sunday, July 1, as the House went into extra innings, Cullerton ascended the speaker's podium with a musical fanfare and repeated his hilarious monologue, doing impressions that deftly captured several House members.

He got a well-deserved standing ovation, and later in the evening he was in the audience using one of his other "voices."

If Cullerton were the Rich Little of the House, this session, Rep. Cal Skinner, R-Crystal Lake, was his Don Rickles.

Skinner is a legitimate expert on the issue of property tax reform and a variety of other subjects.

He makes no pretense of modesty, however (during a committee hearing he announced he was about to "totally destroy" the argument of another legislator).

Skinner sharpened his sarcastic jabs this session and skewered some targets.

With a few more years of practice, he might almost fill the void left by the retirement of former Rep. Roscoe Cunningham of Lawrenceville.

Like Skinner, Cunningham had a tendency to talk too much, but his caustic wit produced some of the best quotes of a legislative session.

There were other examples of talent shown by legislators this session that won't make either the history books or the law books.

Rep. Carol Braun, D-Chicago, for example, during the annual House "poppy day" program, sang "My Buddy" so well some suggested she should be appearing in Las Vegas nightclubs instead of wasting her time in the Illinois General Assembly.

Sen. Robert Egan, D-Chicago, deserves recognition for the most original use of a prop during the session.

Egan, irritated by the pipe smoke of two neighboring senators in the chamber, Demuzio and Sen. Ken Burse, of Carbondale, yanked out an artery gas mask and pulled it over his face one day.

Answering a disturbance call at 65 Lee Wright Homes, Venice, at 7:15 p.m. Wednesday, police found an 18-year-old trying to get in and allegedly using profane language. As police approached, the youth allegedly threw a barbecue grill and chair at a Venice police officer and resisting arrest and aggravated battery. Madison police assisted Venice police in making the arrest.

THEFT AT McDONALD'S

A boy about 16 years old was seen near the shed door at the rear of McDonald's Restaurant, 1515 Johnson Road, early this week with a tire tool in his hand. Authorities later discovered the lock had been pried from the door and about 30 orange bicycle flags had been stolen.

Sheriff assured of more security at MRF

There will be adequate security for Friday night's Doobie Brothers concert at the Mississippi River Festival, Major Fred Bright of the Madison County Sheriff's Department said after a meeting with MRF officials and others Wednesday.

Yesterday's meeting was called after Sheriff Emil Toffant announced Monday that he would no longer provide off-duty deputies to the MRF, unless there was a sufficient number of security persons to maintain order.

The issue was sparked by a concert by the Charlie Daniels Band Sunday night where Jeffrey Lambert, 20, St. Louis, was stabbed twice and another patron was hit on the head with a flashlight by a concert employee during a disturbance officers termed "mass confusion." Lambert is in the intensive care unit of Wood River Township Hospital.

Officials said the crowd at Sunday night's concert was much larger than expected. Only about 4,000 advance tickets were sold, but about 20,000 to 25,000 persons arrived.

Bright told the Press-Record there were only three off-duty deputies and five SIUE police on hand for security and when they attempted to make an arrest in the stabbing incident, the crowd interfered, putting the deputies and police "in jeopardy."

He indicated that when there is an inadequate number of security personnel and problems arise, the emergency room for treatment of head injuries and was released to police after X-rays were taken and sutures were administered.

He was put in a jail cell, charged with state complaints of battery, criminal damage to property and resisting arrest.

At 7:15 a.m. today, police allegedly found him in his jail cell supported by his socks tied around his neck and tied to the top of the cell. His clothing was removed from the cell to protect him, police said.

Police responded to the apartment of Linda Hart, 31, of 2734 Center St., after she called and reported her husband had broken in and was threatening to beat her.

When officers arrived, she and a friend had run outside and her husband, who contended they still were married, was yelling loudly at them from the stairway of the apartment, officers reported.

Mrs. Hart told police her divorce from Tony Harris, 21, of 3877 Roney Drive, became final just hours before. Officers alleged Harris refused to stop yelling loudly, even when warned he was about to be arrested.

When Patrolman J.W. Apperson grabbed him by an arm, Harris allegedly fought with him and Patrolman David Rosenberg came to Apperson's aid. Patrolman Michael Henderson aided and the four scuffled up the narrow stairway, according to official reports.

Harris was struck several times with a police flashlight before officers were able to push him into Mrs. Hart's upstairs apartment where force was used to subdue and handcuff him.

Apperson suffered abrasions to his left heel, which became entangled in the stair railing during the scuffle and Rosenberg suffered a nose injury. Both were treated and released from St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Patrolman Michael Henderson, who witnessed the scuffle and arrest, reported minor injuries, but did not require hospital treatment. Harris was also taken to on-duty deputies must be called in, which amounts to the taxpayers providing security for a concert which is promoted by a private profit-making organization.

Bright also stated, "The Doobie Brothers will be there Friday night and we expect a large, wild group. We notified the MRF that if they will not provide adequate security, we're not going to be there."

"We are not legally bound to provide security. They are a private corporation and can hire a private firm. They have chosen to use policemen, due to their experience in crowd control."

We just want to be sure there are enough officers on hand so they are not put in jeopardy," Bright stated before Wednesday's meeting.

3 GC policemen hurt in scuffle

Three Granite City policemen and the man they were trying to arrest were injured in a scuffle at an apartment in the 2700 block of Center street at 3:55 a.m. today.

The parents of two young boys agreed to pay for a window they broke at Frohardt School, 2040 Johnson Road, at 7:10 p.m. Monday, after one of the boys entered the school building and was caught by a police officer. Three boys, ages 5, 7 and 8 years, were playing near the school when the incident occurred.

MISSING BANK BAGS

Tom Fields, manager of the Venice-owned McKinley bridge, discovered at 6:45 a.m. Wednesday that 12 empty, First National Bank in Madison, bank bags with keys were missing. The bags were inside the office next to the wall on the south side of the building.

News notes

At the urging of Gov. James Thompson, Illinois State Police will intensify their efforts to enforce the 55 miles per hour speed limit. Driving at the speed has been found to be more fuel efficient than higher speeds.

A five percent hike in public aid levels Oct. 1 was signed into law Wednesday by the governor, but is being assailed as insufficient to offset inflation.

"They're trying to solve the energy crisis by frying people in the summer and freezing them in the winter," Gov. Thompson told 500 last night in Belleville at a testimonial dinner honoring Lt. Gov. Dave O'Neal. The governor noted that electricity for Illinois public buildings is generated mainly by abundant coal and nuclear sources, rather than oil. He urged that the U.S. relax clean air standards for five years to permit greater use of coal.

Alton, Edwardsville and Wood River continue to have ozone advisory alerts but Collinsville was removed from the list yesterday. Sunny, hot days with little wind and auto exhaust are blamed for excessive ozone, which leads to suggestions that persons with heart or respiratory ailments limit their physical activity and stay in doors as much as possible. No alerts have been issued here this summer.

Illinois will have 404 million gallons of gasoline in July, about 8.5 percent less than the 442 million gallons delivered in July 1978.

The $45,000 estate of former County Clerk Eulalia Holt leaves most of the funds to relatives and fellow workers. Her extensive collection of paperweights belong to the SIUE Lovejoy Library.

General Motors has posted 1980 auto introductions from Oct. 4 to Oct. 11 to encourage sale of 1979 cars. Granite City's A. O. Smith Corp. shut a supplier of frames to GM assembly plants, has laid off production workers from this week through Aug. 5 due to annual model changes and a July 5 roof collapse at the General Motors assembly plant in Fairfax, Kan.

Perhaps serving to increase legislative backing for an earlier Thompson-Byrne road tax plan, a tax package that was developed Monday is given little chance of being enacted. It calls for higher taxes on cigarettes, liquor, barge shipping and auto purchase. State representatives belatedly adjourned their spring session, approving a $536 million appropriation and $2.5 billion for transportation, and they and senators expect to be called into a special session if a compromise agreement can be reached on Transportation Department funding. The proposed one-cent-per-ton-mile charge on intrastate barge traffic is being assailed as harmful to the Tri-City Regional Port.

Arthur F. Quern is leaving as public aid director to be the governor's chief of government operations, a new post. Deputy Gov. James Fletcher will leave this fall to go into business. Philip O'Connor is acting as state insurance director following the resignation of Richard L. Mathias.

The third annual Bob Goally Cystic Fibrosis celebrity invitational golf tournament will take place Monday, July 16, at Sunset Hills Country Club. A golf clinic is set for 11 a.m. Tuesday. The tournament will begin at noon, and Jack Buck will be toastmaster for an evening award dinner.

Edwardsville will be the first city to get cable television from Southwestern Cable TV. Others contracting with the firm include Granite City, Madison, Pontiac Beach and Collinsville.

The Granite City congregation will be well represented at a four-day district convention of Jehovah's Witnesses today through Sunday at the St. Louis Checkerdome.

A 78 degree lower limit on cooling of non-residential buildings has been ordered by the Carter administration starting Monday, July 16. Exceptions include schools, hospitals, day care centers, food storage areas, hotels and enterprises operating equipment requiring controlled temperatures, such as computers.

Objections arise over sewer taxes

By GARY SCHNEIDER

With area residents now receiving their tax bills, anticipated objections from persons in the special sewer area of Nameoki, Chouteau and Venice townships over the tax rate of $2.04 per $100 assessed valuation are becoming louder.

"Several residents of the special sewer district attended last night's meeting of the special sewer committee to object about their tax bills, including some who will not receive sewer service, although they are in the sewer district and are being taxed the same as those who will receive service."

About nine homes on Old Alton Road north of Johnson School were excluded from the original program because the cost to serve them would be prohibitive. When Granite City annexed Johnson School and provided city sewers to the school, plans to run a sewer line to that area were dropped. The committee told those residents last night that it is "sympathetic" with their problem and will attempt to work with the people to resolve the problem.

Committee Attorney Harry Hartman indicated he is working on legislation which would allow persons who will not benefit from the sewer to disconnect from the special service district. Hartman also suggested the residents who will not be served with sewers file their taxes under protest, and agreed to help them do so. The committee agreed with Hartman's suggestion.

Stanley Lucas, developer of the Sixth Addition to Town and Country East, renewed his request for someone on the sewer committee to present his subdivision's sewer application to the Madison County Board.

Committee Chairman

Louis Whitsett indicated he will not oppose introduction of the application for an Environmental Protection Agency permit to the county board for approval. Board Chairman Nelson Hagauer needs board approval to sign the document, which must be submitted to the EPA for approval before Lucas can proceed with sewers in the subdivision. He plans to link the subdivision into existing Granite City sewers until the county sewers are completed and then switch the subdivision into the county sewers.

The committee approved seven change orders, increasing the cost of the construction by about $16,500.

Changes include rerouting of sewers conflicting with other utility lines, drainage improvements and other changes recommended by the project engineer, Ed Juneau.

SIUE honors 4 here

Fifteen students at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville have been designated to receive a new tuition waiver called the Provost Scholarship Award. Given for the first time, the award will cover tuition at the university for the 1979-80 academic year.

Howard Davis, coordinator of the Deans College and chairman of the selection committee, said

Mehelic bears brunt of complaints in Nameoki

By PETE STEHMAN

Persons attending the Nameoki Township Board meeting Monday could probably be excused for feeling a sense of déjà vu that night.

The meeting was strangely reminiscent of those about three years ago when Supervisor Louis Whitsett chaired the board. Since the election in 1977, most of the meetings in Supervisor Harold Davis' term have been quiet.

That was until Monday night. Instead of making allegations against Whitsett, this year the board and those in the audience lauded complaint on Highway Commissioner Frank Mehelic.

Mehelic said that most of the complaints, particularly those made by township trustees, were politically motivated.

Township residents packed the board meeting room to complain about no less than four problems they say Mehelic has refused to take action on. The complaints were about:

A holding pond on Shiloh Drive that residents say is an eyesore and health hazard in that it draws rats. Mehelic's policy of maintaining a road which is reported to be privately owned.

The need for street lights to reduce accidents in the area of Illinois 162 and Eduardo Drive. And the highway commissioner's failure to order shrubbery be trimmed to prevent accidents at an intersection on Stratford Lane.

Trustee Lee Adams, who chaired the meeting in the absence of Davis, criticized Mehelic for not being responsive to the requests of township residents.

Adams said he is sick of the board hearing gripes about highway department concerns because Mehelic does not name many complaints. He said the town board has little control over the highway commissioner, except in giving approval to some of his financial transactions. They denied a request for a $6,000 appropriation transfer for Mehelic's department alleging the highway commissioner is being "fiscally irresponsible."

Adams further charged that Mehelic was not properly handling his department's finances, and at one point in the meeting told the highway commissioner: "You're not doing the job you were elected to do."

Mehelic said the complaints from the board were political and primarily instigated by Adams. He said it was not necessary for trustees to use "derogatory terms" in addressing him. "They tried to make me look like an idiot," Mehelic said. "But I showed a little class and didn't pursue it with them."

The highway commissioner said he is responsive to citizens' complaints. "If a man calls me about something, I'll guarantee you he'll get an answer on it," he said. Residents complaining about the holding pond created the most clamor at the meeting. They complained, and Adams agreed, that no action had been taken on the holding pond problem after they gripped at the last meeting.

Mehelic told the audience he had sent out employees to clean up the trash in the pond area and was planning on having weeds cut in the area this week. He said he could find no signs that there were rats living by the holding pond, as residents had complained earlier.

One resident asked why the pond still contained water when they say it is the major problem. "There will always be water in that holding pond," Mehelic said. "In the time I have been in office it's never been dry." The highway commissioner said the regular pump on the pond was broken by a sewer contractor and that he is negotiating with the firm to have that problem remedied.

Adams suggested Mehelic use one of the township's regular pumps to empty the pond water onto an open field, where it could dry up.

On a suggestion by Trustee James Hessler, the board agreed to take action on the holding pond themselves if Mehelic does not solve the problems this week. They said the work could be paid for out of township health accounts since the pond does present a health hazard.

Adams said he first knew Mehelic would not take swift action on the complaints on the pond because of his attitude. "The trustee informed him of the problem. Adams contended Mehelic said, 'Let them wait,' after I demanded help with the holding pond. Mehelic denied he had said that."

The highway commissioner was not notably riled when complaints about the pond persisted from the audience. When one resident asked why the pond area could not be kept clean and regularly mowed, Mehelic said, "You must want a golf course there."

On the complaints about maintaining the private road, which is off Illinois 162 and Eduardo Drive, Mehelic said his actions were justified. He said previous highway commissioners always have taken care of the road, which has no formal name. "They were maintaining that when I was just a kid," he said.

Mehelic told the contingent asking for street lights on Eduardo Drive that he did not have the money to help them. He said the residents should consider forming a street light district if they think the situation is serious enough.

Few of the complaining residents seemed pleased with the answers they got at the meeting. Several even asked who had control over Mehelic's actions. Trustees informed them that Madison County Highway Supervisor Les Miller had some control.

Helen Hawkins urged the trustees and Mehelic to "work together. Don't make this a political battle."

Straige to head national explorer law enforcement conference news

Walter P. "Mick" Straige, Madison, assistant to the editor of the Granite City Press-Record, has been named chairman of the new committee for the first National Law Enforcement Explorer (NLEE) conference to be held at Michigan State University July 24 through 28.

Straige will direct a staff of 19 professional journalists and photographers from various parts of the United States, in addition to working with representatives of the Associated Press and United Press International.

An estimated 1,000 Explorers from police departments and cities throughout the United States will be present.

The event is being sponsored by the United States Secret Service under the direction of M. Stuart Knight, director. Agent James Boyle is coordinating the conference, public relations.

Straige has been employed by the Press-Record for nearly 10 years. He previously worked in the field of corrections and also was a police investigator. He currently is vice-president of the local Cahokia Mound Council, Boy Scouts of America, in charge of the Explorer program.

W. F. STRANGE

The objectives of the conference include: to provide law enforcement Explorers with a format for career and educational exploration within the law enforcement area; to raise the level of officer and advisor performance within law enforcement posts; to provide an opportunity to enrich the program of each law enforcement post with representatives attending; and to have fun.

East European songs, dances to be featured

Imagine spending a Sunday afternoon in July sitting on the lawn or around picnic tables listening to the music of the tapan, kaval, gajda and sopile, while watching dance performances that reach back into Eastern European history hundreds of years.

Sound like a pleasurable, but totally impossible, way of spending a summer afternoon? The idea is not only pleasurable, but quite possible, the St. Louis East European Friends of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville report.

When they held their annual family picnic at Chambers Park in Florissant July 15, there will be music and dancing at different locations throughout the park.

The International Folk Dance Society will feature Hungarian and Romanian dances, while the Czech Singing Society will perform the Czech Sokol Hall in south St. Louis will provide songs to the audience's enjoyment.

The Polish Choir from St. Cyril Methodist Church in St. Louis will provide choral offerings representing that country's heritage.

The St. Louis Tammies, a Croatian group from south St. Louis, will play instrumental music. And Bob Beer of Champaign will entertain by playing the gajda, a Bulgarian bagpipe. He will be accompanied by the tapan (drum) and kaval (flute).

The Vince Debevc Polka Band will provide polka tunes.

The Button Box Players will provide Slovene traditional music. "The music will probably be the closest to what you could have heard in the villages of Europe," Mark Sarich, chairman of the entertainment committee believes.

Sarich is a graduate student at SIUE majoring in behavioral science, with a concentration in ethnic studies.

Macedonian music will be provided by John Shevmakor and Sarich playing the kaval. Members will participate in this performance, learning how to dance traditional dances of the ancient kingdom, now part of Greece, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia.

Roger Hill, an associate professor of physics at SIUE, will perform music native to the Primorje region, a coastal area of Yugoslavia.

"This traditional music goes back at least 300 years, and it has remained unchanged for the past 200 to 300 years," Sarich said. Hill plays the sopile, a reed instrument.

The Villa Singing Society, a group of older people from St. Joseph's Croatian Catholic Church of south St. Louis, will perform Yugoslav tambura music. And at least two other groups will play Yugoslav string instrumental music.

The day would not be complete without a Licko Kolo, a singing-dance ritual of the Primorje region, Sarich said.

Reaching deep into the heart of East European culture, the Licko Kolo is a slow, solemn dance.

If authentically done, it begins at 6 a.m., and continues until 6 p.m. "Western influence has altered it, however," Sarich said. The audience will be encouraged to participate in this ritual also.

Two groups from SIUE will perform traditional dances and songs from Polish and Croatian traditions. The Polish group will perform works from Polish wedding traditions from the Kurpie Puszczy Zielonej region, an area located in the north central part of Poland.

Members of the Croatian group will perform ritual songs and dances focusing on the Ladarke, or spring festival, native to the Prigorje region, located in the vicinity of Zagreb, the country's capital.

Admission to the picnic will be $2 for each carload of people in advance and $3 the day of the picnic. Tickets may be purchased from the SIUE Foundation or at the gate. Proceeds from the admissions will be used to assist the university with its Slavic programs.

Among the federal agencies with exhibits and seminars will be: Federal Aviation Administration; Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (AT&F); Drug Enforcement Administration; U. S. Marshal Service; Criminal Investigation Division (CID); U. S. Army; Northwestern Traffic Institute; Detroit Police; U. S. Customs Service; U. S. Naval Intelligence; Federal Bureau of Investigation; Internal Revenue Service; Internal Security; Criminal Investigation; Michigan State Police; Air Force Security Police; and U. S. Secret Service.

Seminar topics will include white collar crime, women in law enforcement, probation and parole, international terrorism, private security, organized crime, police stress, domestic crises, intervention, response teams, polygraph and forensic science.

Explorer competition events will include pistol, physical fitness, accident investigation, crime scene search, hostage negotiation, arrest and search, narcotics and crime prevention.

Burglars cut through wall

Burglars chiseled their way through a double-stone basement wall to gain entry to the Sav-Mor Market, 1508 Third St., Madison, during the weekend, but were unable to open a heavy safe which they moved from the main floor to the basement.

The break-in netted the thieves some coins and food stamps which were taken from the cash register. Marvin Frywith, operator of the market, told Madison police. The burglars also ate some candy bars while in the store, police reported.

Moving the safe to the basement apparently involved considerable work, authorities said, noting that the intruders battered it extensively in an unsuccessful effort to open it.

Hurt by rolling car at gas pumps

A motorist who was putting gasoline into his car at a service station at 3024 Nameoki Road was injured during the weekend when the car waiting in line behind him began rolling and pinned him between the two cars.

Johnny Steward, 25, of 2510 Nameoki Drive, was taken by ambulance to St. Elizabeth Medical Center where he was treated for pains to both knees and lower legs. He was released after treatment.

Police reported the car behind Steward was owned by George Willis, 2665 Buckton Ave. Police reported the car apparently slipped out of gear.

Passenger hurt at RR crossing

Mrs. Cynthia Heady, 22, of 1115 McCambridge Ave., Madison, a passenger in a vehicle operated by Zella L. Niehaus of the same address, suffered minor injuries in a two-car accident at 11:30 a.m. Monday.

She was examined and treated at St. Elizabeth Medical Center and then released.

The accident occurred on Edwardsville Road at the railroad tracks.

Mrs. Niehaus' auto and a car driven by Stephen Kosick of Florissant, Mo., were involved in a side-by-side collision when the latter changed lanes to avoid striking a third vehicle halted at the crossing.

YOUNG MAN HURT
Steve Boller, 19, of 1742 Poplar St., was admitted to St. Elizabeth Medical Center after he was involved in a jeep accident last week. He suffered a bump to his forehead, back pains and a headache.

Burglars take cash, guns

Burglars who may have entered through an unlocked door stole a large amount of cash, jewelry and several guns, according to a report to police by Sandra Wise, 219 East 23rd St., at 2:55 a.m. Sunday.

The thieves also took a quantity of jewelry, including nine diamond rings, a diamond pendant, two check books, a 12-gauge magnum shotgun, two .22 caliber rifles, a 7.65 Italian bolt action rifle, a 12-gauge double-barrel shotgun and a 30-06 Weatherby bolt action rifle.

Police said there were no signs of force entry, but a rear door was found unlocked. The cash was taken from a dresser drawer in a bedroom, the report said.

TWO CHARGED

Two persons were charged in two separate incidents with disobeying a police officer Sunday evening in front of the Bastille Lounge, 1316 Madison Ave., Madison. Police charged they refused to stop drinking outside the lounge. Jerome D. Johnson Jr., 21, of 2426 Lincoln Ave. was released on $50 bond at 9:26 p.m. Sunday and Kathy L. Link, 19, of 3024 Ash Ave. was released on $50 bond at 3:20 a.m. Sunday.

A new child abuse act passed by the Illinois General Assembly will be one of the most comprehensive and progressive child protection laws in the nation, according to Gregory L. Coler, director of the state Department of Children and Family Services.

The legislation, Senate Bill 973, was co-sponsored by Senators Kenneth Buzbee (D-Carbondale) and Richard Daley (C-Chicago) and Representatives Peter Peters (R-Chicago) and Eugene Barnes (D-Chicago). It attracted bipartisan support in both houses.

Coler said the new law will:

1. Establish a statewide, toll-free hotline for persons to report suspected cases of child abuse and neglect.

2. Require DCFPS to establish local specialized child protective service units within each geographic region designated by the director.

3. Create a special job category, child protective service worker, for DCFPS staffers who work with child abuse cases.

4. Authorize specially designated DCFPS workers to take protective custody of children who are in a life-threatening situation because of abuse or neglect.

5. Expand the number of mandated reporters of suspected abuse or neglect to include registered psychologists, probation officers, medical examiners, and field personnel of the state departments of Public Health, Corrections, and Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities.

6. Expand the legal definition of an abusive caretaker to include persons living in the child's home who are not legally related to the parents.

Coler said the latter provision is important because the mother's paramour is the alleged abuser in numerous situations, including eight percent of all deaths.

Girl taken to detention home

A 15-year-old girl apparently lost control of her actions and began throwing rocks at cars and smashed the windshield of a truck, using an iron bar, at 2:50 a.m. Tuesday, near the 2100 block of Adams Street.

Police found the girl hiding beneath an auto in the backyard at the rear of 2100 block of Adams.

She refused to come out from under the car and allegedly kicked and fought with four officers, who were required to help extricate her.

The girl repeatedly kicked the doors and windows of a squad car while being taken to police headquarters.

As a precautionary measure and to avoid the girl hurting herself, a restraint chain and leg cuffs were applied during the time she was transferred to the Madison County Detention Home at Edwardsville.

The girl refused to give police an address.

The 21-page bill is a complete rewrite of the state child abuse statute.

"Illinois has placed itself in the forefront of those states which are legislatively prescribing increased community involvement, automated central registries, and procedures for improved case handling and review," Coler said.

"When the law is fully implemented we should have a modern, effective tool to come to grips with the child abuse problem."

Other features of the bill include formulation of special procedures to deal with reports of child abuse in public or private institutions and streamlining of the statewide child abuse registry.

"Through the new registry," Coler said, "we will be able to assist in diagnoses and evaluation of individual cases and track them through the child care system. We'll also be able to maintain statistics that will identify gaps in community resources and improve the quality of local services."

Police probe rape attempt

A 22-year-old Granite City woman awakened Monday to find a man in the bed attempting to rape her, she informed police.

When she managed to elude him and ran downstairs, he threatened her, saying "You better not open your mouth or I'll kill you," she said.

The woman was taken to St. Elizabeth Medical Center for an examination.

Other people reportedly were in the house at the time of the incident.

A 30-year-old man later was taken into custody at his home and was being held pending further investigation.

Other features of the bill include formulation of special procedures to deal with reports of child abuse in public or private institutions and streamlining of the statewide child abuse registry.

Efficiency key to cooling costs

By JERI BOWER
Assistant County Adviser on Home Economics

It's hard to believe, but the hot, muggy weather you may have longed for in January is here and you may find yourself looking for an air conditioner to cool your home.

If so, be sure to consider the air conditioner's cooling capacity and energy efficiency ratio before buying.

The cooling capacity is the amount of heat-measured in British thermal units (Btu)—that an air conditioner can remove from the air in an hour.

One Btu is equal to the amount of heat generated by burning a wooden kitchen match. A 12,000 Btu unit will, therefore, remove 12,000 Btu of heat from an area every hour.

The energy efficiency ratio (EER) is the number of Btu of heat that one electrical energy watt will remove from the air in one hour.

To determine the EER, divide the Btu per hour cooling capacity by the watts used. Thus, a 12,000 Btu air conditioner using 1,350 watts of electric power has an EER of 8.8.

The higher the EER, the less the cooling unit costs to run.

A unit with a high EER is usually heavier, more durable and, probably, more expensive to buy than models with lower EERs.

But an air conditioner with an EER of 10 will cool the same amount of air on half the electricity as a comparable unit with an EER of 5.

The EER value can be found on a metal plate attached to the unit. Typical EERs range from 4 to 12.

If the EER information is not visible, be sure to ask the salesperson. And remember, extra dollars invested at the time of purchase may be recovered over years of operation due to the unit's higher efficiency ratio.

Sues hospital and doctors

Frank Cobetto of Clinton County has filed a five-count lawsuit, seeking $1 million in each count, in Madison County Circuit Court against St. Elizabeth Medical Center, Dr. Jay Cohen, Dr. O.L. Shaikun and Dr. Xanmon Tulyashehin.

The suit alleges that while he was treated in the medical center between July 8 and 12, 1977, doctors failed to discover a broken left hip or pelvis, thus causing permanent injuries.

WAREHOUSE BURGLARY

A burglary of the Steel Haulers Warehouse, Market and State streets, Madison, was discovered at 8 a.m. Tuesday. Items taken included a chain saw, radio, socket set and various other tools.

HOUSE LOOTED

Loot that included a jewelry box and jewelry, trading stamps, a camera and a barometer were taken from the home of Leonard Nunery, 2617 Lynch Ave., between June 30 and July 7, it was reported during the weekend. Nunery told police the break-in occurred while he was on vacation. The residence was ransacked and items strewn about the rooms.

Double crop bean variety plots here

Madison County Farm Adviser

The University of Illinois Extension Service double crop soybean variety plots were planted last week on the Bob Bunselmeier farm near Granite City.

This is the fourth year that he has planted the double crop soybean variety plots on his farm. The first double crop variety plots were planted in 1976.

They are located on School House Road off Route 111. The plots are east of Bunselmeier's house on the south side of the road. School House Road is about two miles south of Route 162.

The plots were planted in wheel stubble.

Varieties included in the plots are Woodworth, Wells II, Wayne, Cutler, Williams, Potosi, Elk Bonus, NK 410, Salem, Agri Pro 35, Agri Pro 40, FFR 335, Franklin, Union, Crawford, Mitchell, NKX 5015, Cumberland and Oakland.

Signs identifying the varieties will be placed on the plots later this summer.

Soybean Cyst Nematode is beginning to show up in soybean fields in Madison County.

The first noticeable sign of soybean cyst nematode is the development of oval patches of stunted yellowing plants in one or more areas of the field. These areas often appear to be a nutrient deficiency.

The second sign is that the soybeans in the center of the oval or circle area are more severely stunted than beans near the edge of the area.

Don't jump to conclusions that nematodes are necessarily present.

The cyst nematode is a microscopic, colorless "root-knot" larva that attacks the roots of the soybean plant. As it completes its life cycle, cysts about the size of a pinhead form on the roots of the soybean plant.

One female cyst can produce from 200 to 400 eggs, and as many as five generations of cysts can be completed in a single season.

If one cyst containing 400 eggs is introduced into a soybean field in the spring, over 10 trillion cysts could be produced in one growing season.

If you find a soybean cyst nematode problem on your farm, there are several steps you can follow to live with the problem.

Soybean cyst nematode only moves a few inches a year in the soil. You can take precautions to prevent spreading nematode from field to field with machinery.

Plan and follow a crop rotation. Nematode levels can be reduced to non-economic levels with two to three years in a non-host crop.

Use nematode resistant soybean varieties in your rotation. But don't plant resistant varieties on a continuous basis, because new races may develop on these varieties.

State forum for GOP White House candidates

Don Adams, state chairman of the Illinois Republican Party, has announced the state Republican Party and the Republican County Chairmen's Association headed by Al Jourdan of McHenry County will jointly sponsor a Republican Presidential Forum on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 3-4, at the O'Hare-Kennedy Holiday Inn near Chicago.

Each candidate will have 30 minutes to address the audience. In this time he will be introduced, give an opening statement, and answer questions from the floor.

Following his presentation, a candidate will have a private news conference. When each of the candidates has appeared, there will be a luncheon with a special guest speaker.

Candidates who will appear are Congressman John B. Anderson, George Bush, John B. Connally, Congressman Phillip Crane, Senator Robert Dole, Ben Fernandez and Harold Stassen. No surrogates will be allowed.

An audience in excess of 1,500 is expected to attend. Tickets may be purchased for $15 per person from The Illinois Presidential Forum, 127 N. Dearborn St., Suite 817, Chicago 60602; phone number is 312-941-6410.

Distilling process to be viewed by farmers

The National Farmers Organization (NFO) will hold an informational meeting Saturday, July 14, at the Junior Livestock building on the state fairgrounds, Springfield.

Preceding the meeting will be a truckload cheese sale of products from NFO members from Wisconsin. The sale will begin at 8 a.m. and continue until the cheese is sold out.

The purpose of the meeting is to acquaint members and the public with the progress being made in NFO through collective bargaining for agriculture, according to a spokesman.

DeVon Woodland, national president of NFO, will report on his recent trip to China. With him will be the commodity department heads of the organization, who will give reports on their respective divisions, those being milk, grain, hogs, cattle and specialty crops.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. and adjourn at 4 p.m. Also on the program will be Robert Stearns, Worden, Ill., who has obtained a permit to build a solar still to be used to make fuel for his vehicles from corn. Stearns claims that the mash left over from the process is 20 percent more efficient than conventional feeds for hogs and 14 percent for cattle. He will have a mock up of his still set up at the meeting and will instruct those present on how to follow and operate the system.

The public is welcome. There is no charge to attend the meeting.

ID cards for senior citizens

Pictures for park ID cards for senior citizens will be taken Friday at the Granite City Township Building from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Staff members from the Granite City Park District will take the pictures. Proof of residency, such as a bill or letter with the person's name and address on it, must be presented at the time the pictures are taken.

The ID's are offered free of charge and may be used by the senior citizens for free swimming at the pool, at Wilson Park, and for free transportation for several bus trips planned by the park district.

Fallout

Division of National Steel Corp., stipulates in the agreement that it will spend an additional $1.8 million in anti-pollution installations at the sinter plant and pay damages incurred in the white ash fallout in the fall of 1977, it disclaims responsibility for the alleged pollution.

Randall Robertson, Granite City attorney representing the steel firm, told the hearing during a review of the terms of the agreement that Granite City Steel, despite its belief that it did not cause the white ash showers, proposed the settlement as a benefit to the community rather than have the issue in litigation for another several years.

Robertson noted the agreement also provides that in the event of another white ash fallout, the company agrees to shut down the sinter plant for a 24-hour period to give EPA officials an opportunity to determine if the fallout is coming from the steel plant.

His remarks brought several complaints from among 30 persons who attended the hearing conducted by Robert Matoesian, Granite City attorney, as hearing officer, in the City Council Chambers at the city hall. Those who spoke on the issue said the white ash fallout is continuing at intervals and still covers cars and homes.

Matoesian explained that comments made at the hearing would be used in his preparation of recommendations to the Illinois Pollution Control Board which has final authority in approving or disapproving the proposed agreement between EPA and the steel firm.

Charles Douglas, alderman of Granite City's first ward, spoke for an hour, criticizing EPA officials for agreeing to a settlement rather than prosecuting the steel firm on pollution charges.

Douglas criticized EPA officials for "not doing anything for the people," suggested the Illinois attorney general's office "should represent the people and not the steel industry" and contended the sintering operation at the steel plant is not a "necessary" part of steel production.

The alderman in his opening remarks criticized the Press-Record for a story in Monday's issue stating that the agreement between EPA and the steel firm eliminated a series of three public hearings that were scheduled to hear testimony in the EPA suit.

"There would have been a big crowd here tonight if that story had been in the paper," he said.

Later, Robertson read into the record a part of the story which announced the scheduling of the public hearing, noting the speaker (Douglas) had not mentioned that part of the article.

Early in his remarks, Douglas began reading an article about alleged pollution by National Steel, but he was interrupted by Matoesian who told Douglas "We should get along on this issue."

Douglas, referring to the steel firms contention that its plant did not cause the fallout, said:

"Granite City Steel denies, denies, denies that it caused the white ash fallout." He then read a list containing what he said were complaints of white ash fallout in 1978 and this year. He said complaints had been filed on fallout in March, July, August, September and November 1978, and in March, June and July this year.

Douglas reviewed the proposed agreement point by point, interspersing his comments which generally opposed the settlement of the allegations.

As Douglas began discussing information he said he had received in conversation with a steel company employee about maintenance and operation of anti-pollution equipment, Robertson interrupted to say:

"I presume Mr. Douglas realizes that he is engaging in hearsay."

"That's all right. This is a public hearing, not a trial," Douglas replied.

As Douglas continued, Robertson repeated his objection and then asked Douglas:

"Are you giving testimony?"

"No," Douglas answered.

"Have you been sworn in to make this a matter of record?"

Douglas said he had not.

Robertson asked the hearing officer to swear Douglas in as a witness, but Douglas remarked he was finished with that particular issue.

Douglas said he could tell EPA officials the cause of the white ash fallout.

While the agreement provides a fund of $10,000 for payment of damage claims resulting from the 1977 fallout, Robertson explained in response to questions from the audience that the fund does not provide for payment of any claims made since the September-November 1977 fallout.

"This does not preclude anyone filing claims for any damage incurred since that time, but they are not covered by the provisions in the agreement," Robertson noted.

Patrick Chesny, assistant attorney general, told the audience that a settlement was agreed upon "Because this is a good settlement and it will improve the environment for you people."

He said those who have filed claims for damages from the 1977 fallout do not have to accept the figure set by the adjuster in determining the amount of claims.

Judy Williams, 2409 Hodges Ave., told the hearing there was a heavy fallout of white ash in her neighborhood on June 30 this year.

"It was so bad it looked like it was snowing," she said.

Florence Farmer, 2531 E. 23rd St., complained not only of fallout but said the noise pollution is so great because of a scrap metal yard across the street from her home that she has to keep her windows and doors closed. "Or I couldn't hear the television."

She said she had spoken with EPA agents at one time but was told it was difficult to enforce anti-noise regulations. She said she had correspondence from EPA officials concerning the matter.

Dan Goodwin, director of the air pollution control division of EPA, said he would look into the matter, although he noted that the noise pollution issue had nothing to do with the matter before Tuesday night's hearing.

Kevin Stanton who said he now lives on 23rd Street but formerly lived near the sinter plant said that fallout ash had ruined his car and boat. He maintained emissions could be seen coming from the sinter plant.

James Arnett, 2135 Monroe Ave., said "I can stand in my front yard and see the smoke. I had a new boat and the fallout turned the railings green. It (fallout) seems to be getting worse all the time. There is no question for me as to where it is coming from."

Paula Case, air pollution control engineer of the Granite City Air Pollution Control Board, asked EPA officials to define what would determine an incident necessary to shutting down the sinter plant for investigation.

Goodwin said the state EPA officials have full authority for determining what will constitute an alleged violation severe enough to shut down the sinter plant.

Several women in the audience contended that it was a hardship on the people to hire their own attorneys and file claims after they were told that more recent damages that may have been caused by fallout would not be paid under the proposed settlement agreement.

Alderman Roy Poulos of the Third Ward, asked if the improvements to be made by Granite City Steel "will clear up this situation (fallout)."

Robertson replied that the improvements to the baghouse will be in addition to those already scheduled and that those improvements will clear the way for the steel firm to go ahead with a modernization program.

Goodwin noted that the baghouse improvements proposed constitute the best technology available and should bring the steel plant in compliance with revised air control regulations which are more strict than in any other state.

Also attending the hearing Tuesday night were John Williams, an attorney for EPA, and Don Cairns, Granite City Steel vice president in charge of the firm's anti-pollution programs.

All in all, it was quite a morning and everyone is relieved.

No one was hurt by the latest hunk of space junk to fall into and through the atmosphere.

And we can all look at the sky today and not be the least bit inclined to believe that Chicken Little might have been right.

Madison pact near on rail crossing repairs

By MICK STRANGE
of the Press-Record

The City of Madison and the Illinois Terminal Railroad (ITR) are nearing agreement, after several years, on the repair of tracks and grade crossings in the city.

The ITR is planning a major repair of track from State Street, Madison, to just west of Edwardsville Road.

The repair cost to the railroad has been estimated at several hundred thousand dollars, as the railroad will replace existing track with new heavier track and also replace most of the railroad ties.

The ITR refers to the repair area as the Hoyt Junction-Terminal Lead.

The Madison crossings involved are between 18th and 14th streets at State street, Grand and Madison avenues, and Iowa and Washington streets.

A letter dated June 28, 1979, from Casper S. Nighossian, city attorney for Madison, to Steve Anthony of the Illinois Terminal Railroad was read at the council meeting Tuesday night.

In the letter, Nighossian outlined areas of agreement between the city and the railroad reached at a meeting on June 20 between the attorneys.

The letter was then tabled pending a reply from the railroad and is to be on the agenda at the Tuesday, July 24, meeting, if a reply from the railroad is forthcoming.

The railroad has advertised for bids for the repair work and is to let contracts on the grade crossings the ITR will fill with cold patch the area located between the cross ties, where the rails run across the entire width of the streets.

The agreement allows for temporary repairs to the grade crossing on Madison Avenue pending a permanent grade crossing repair by the state of Illinois. The temporary repairs are scheduled to be replaced with a rubber crossing by the end of the year.

At all the grade crossings the ITR will fill with cold patch the area located between the cross ties, where the rails run across the entire width of the streets.

group at such an early hour, and praised local residents as "winners," a term with which Toastmaster Robertson voiced agreement.

The nine-year starter on the St. Louis football Cardinals, a five-year National Football League all-pro, recalled speaking here often and participating in various financial drives, and said that over the years he has gotten to know many Illinoisans on a first-name basis although he lives in Missouri.

Noting that Big Red rookies will begin their 1979 practice Saturday and the remainder of the team will report next Thursday, Dierdorf speculated that former Oklahoma University Quarterback Thomas Loft may qualify for a team position as a running back.

If so, the wishbone formation vector might be used as quarterback on goaline plays, a college specialty of his in which he was able to handicap defenders by forcing them to guess wildly on what play would be called, the speaker commented.

Conceding that owner Bill Bidwill follows some business policies with which Dierdorf disagreed, the player added that Bidwill is a good person who provides much behind-the-scenes help to many causes.

While Dierdorf says he initially assumed that the hiring of retired Coach Bud Wilkinson was a public relations gesture, he now believes Bidwill "has bitten off more than he can chew" and that Wilkinson will play a large and growing role in decisions affecting the team. He credits the coach with effectively arguing that some past procedures, if continued, would have led to a revolt by players or fans.

Proud that the 1978 Cardinal gridiron team withstood an eight-game losing streak without bickering or public criticism of fellow players or coaches, Dierdorf said this bodes well for the 1979 squad, whose outside running attack and pass receiving are being bolstered.

The Big Red will not only improve on the final 6-10 record but will surprise both experts and fans with its success, he predicted, despite a tough early schedule of home games with Dallas, Pittsburgh and Washington and visits to New York, Los Angeles and Houston.

A key to 1979 championship hopes will be the degree to which injuries can be limited, the gathering was told.

of refunding.

Verbal notification that the federally financed programs will be refunded this year was received Friday by Superintendent of Schools Robert N. Vickers.

The administrator said the good news came via a telephone call from Barbara Tatum of the U. S. Office of Education in Washington, D. C.

Formal documents certifying the amount will follow, Supt. Vickers said.

At that time, letters rescinding staff dismissals will be mailed.

The $354,634 grant will cover the Title VII basic program, geared to reading and mathematics, plus a pilot component.

Supt. Vickers said the pilot project involves study skills for elementary pupils, including social studies and science, and may call for a human relations specialist and a counselor.

"I just wish all our school district's financial problems could now be solved," the administrator commented yesterday.

The Venice district is confronted with a deficit of $600,000 this year.

At 7 o'clock tonight, the Venice Board of Education will continue its task of cost cutting discussions.

The next economic move on the agenda appears to be the referendum to repeal free textbooks in the Venice district, scheduled Saturday, July 21.

Approval of the simple majority "yes" or "no" vote will decide the free textbook issue and could save the school district between $12,000 and $18,000 annually to help meet its pressing financial problems.

The district has provided free textbooks for 40 years, the program having been approved by referendum in 1939.

Supt. Vickers said he will present a tentative schedule of fees for textbooks at tonight's board meeting, which will go into effect if members approve and the referendum passes.

The board will hold a special meeting July 23 to discuss a fleet problem and payments related to the issue, which pertains to land use.

While most people kept their sense of humor and remained optimistic that they would escape harm, the mournful wail of the warning siren Tuesday didn't help anyone retain calm nerves.

At some offices, there was competition to pick the time or place that the space station would strike land or water.

Vince Saputo, advertising manager, correctly guessed where the monster would fall.

Paul Halbert, general manager, wasn't far off; he picked Toledo.

All in all, it was quite a morning and everyone is relieved.

contracts with the Calumet Company of Chicago. A special meeting may be called to finalize a land lease, operator's agreement and options contract with the company.

The port acquired by lease another 5,400 lineal feet of trackage this week for storage of railroad cars at the Granite City Army Installation. This, combined with 6,800 feet acquired last month, gives the port storage room for 120 railroad cars in portions of the military base.

Twenty percent of the gross revenue obtained from the new bulk grain facility will begin to be paid to the Illinois Capital Development Board, which helped finance the new facilities, it was noted.

For the fourth year the board entered into an agreement to participate in a port technical assistance program which gives engineering and planning assistance. The agreement is with the Southwestern Illinois Metropolitan and Regional Planning Commission.

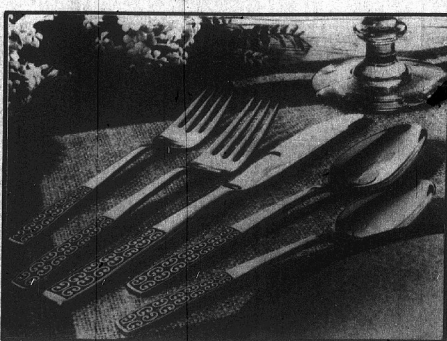

The board will hold a special meeting July 23 to discuss a fleet problem and payments related to the issue, which pertains to land use.

$1.8 million air cleaner will increase efficiency at steel sintering plant

An agreement reached during the weekend between the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, the Office of the Illinois Attorney General and the Granite City Steel Division of National Steel Corporation settled a complaint pending for months before the Illinois Pollution Control Board.

The complaint was filed with the Board by the attorney general at the request of the IEPA, against the firm's sinter plant for alleged emission of a white ash dust between Sept. 1 and Nov. 30, 1977.

The agency charged it was injurious to property in the vicinity of the plant.

Granite City Steel denied the agency's charge and the settlement agreement does not constitute any change in that position.

Under the terms of the agreement, Granite City Steel agrees to employ a private claims adjuster to investigate claims of property damage and pay such damages which occurred during the time the emissions took place.

The company also agrees to make a $10,000 payment to the state of Illinois which will be reduced by the amount the company pays claimants who accept settlement from the adjuster.

If the amount paid in claims and adjuster's fees exceeds the $10,000, there will be no payment to the state. This feature makes the settlement unique in the history of such agreements, authorities said.

A total of 54 persons filed complaints in the white ash incident within the time period it occurred.

Granite City Steel also agreed to construct a $1.8 million baghouse air cleaner to replace an existing facility at the sinter plant.

The new air pollution control device is expected to be much more efficient than the old equipment in removing particulate emissions from the sintering operations.

The company has filed a permit application with the IEPA for the baghouse, and construction is expected to begin in the near future.

To help determine the source of the white ash, the company has agreed to shut down the operation of its sinter plant, for no more than 24 hours, upon notification by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency that the agency believes white ash is being discharged.

The agency will investigate immediately and advise the company of its conclusions concerning the source of the problem, allowing the company to resume operations if it appears the sinter plant is not at fault.

The settlement agreement is subject to approval of the Illinois Pollution Control Board.

The agreement's provisions are intended to aid the public as well as to permit Granite City Steel to proceed with a modernization program involving the expenditure of tens of millions of dollars, spokesmen said.

The sinter plant at Granite City Steel recycles blast furnace dust, iron ore fines and other waste products which would otherwise accumulate in massive quantities.

They are converted into an iron rich material — sinter — which is used to produce iron in the company's blast furnaces.

Granite City Steel is the largest steel plant in the St. Louis metropolitan area and employs nearly 5,000 persons.

Complaints on the white ash fallout were submitted by:

David Long, 2300 Edwards St., 9-19-77, 10 a.m.

Sonny Past, 2200 E. 21st St., 9-21-77, 10:30 a.m.

Sentenced in weapon case

Terry L. Wilson, 22, of 1713 Rhodes St., Madison, has been sentenced to serve three and one-half years in prison after pleading guilty to unlawful use of a weapon.

He allegedly had a gun in his car when he was arrested March 15 in East Madison. An armed robbery charge against him in connection with an incident Feb. 4 at the Calvo's at the Granite City Coachman service station on Edwardsville Road was dismissed.

Circuit Judge John L. DeLaurenti accepted the plea and pronounced sentence.

3-year prison term ordered

Eugene C. Swafford, St. Louis, formerly of Madison, has been sentenced in the Madison County Circuit Court to serve three years in prison after Swafford pleaded guilty to a felony count of theft.

Circuit Judge Harold R. Clark pronounced sentence. Swafford allegedly opened a checking account at First Granite City National Bank with $50 under the name L.T. Connor Jan 2 and then deposited "bad checks," later withdrawing funds from the account in excess of the amount of "real" funds available.

LOOK WHO'S TALKING ON TV TONIGHT

A new local addition in the genre of television talk shows is about to premiere. Look Who's Talking, a series of 13 half-hour programs, produced and hosted by Chris Moore, will make its debut at 10:30 tonight on Channel 9. Each week, Look Who's Talking will feature interviews with local and national celebrities and "not-so-celebrated but fascinating" individuals.

90-day jail term ordered

Thomas J. Scott, 24, of 2008 Buxton Ave., has been sentenced to serve two years of probation and 90 days in the Madison County Jail after pleading guilty to burglary.

He allegedly was found inside St. John United Church of Christ, 2901 Nantuxet Road, March 26. Police responded to a burglar alarm and found the cemetery office and a garage had been entered and a metal safe door was broken with an ax.

They then checked the church building and found a duffle bag full of items from the cemetery office in the stairwell. Nine officers searched the church and found Scott inside. It was alleged.

Circuit Judge Horace Calvo has given George Morgan, 24, of 7 Iris Court, Ponton Beach, two years of probation after Morgan pleaded guilty to a felony count of theft.

A misdemeanor theft charge was dismissed. Morgan allegedly stole an auto belonging to National Car Rental from Eddie's Lounge, 2900 Nantuxet Road, Feb. 17 and was arrested the next day in Granite City in the car with a juvenile.

Found guilty in theft case

Norris L. Smith, 32, University City, Mo., has been sentenced to serve five years in prison after he was found guilty in a trial of a felony count of theft.

Circuit Judge Harold R. Clark pronounced sentence. Smith was arrested after an incident at local pharmacies after he and a woman allegedly used stolen prescription blanks to attempt to obtain drugs in December 1978.

MAN GIVEN PROBATION

A robbery charge against Jonathan J. Byers, 22, of 2036 Washington Ave., has been dismissed by Circuit Judge Horace Calvo in Madison County Circuit Court. He had been charged with a March 12 incident in Ponton Beach, according to court records.

READY FOR ANY EMERGENCY.

Coached by Granite City assistant civil defense director Valerie Evenden to wear Press-Record hard hats in preparation for the worst, fellow news staffers Cathy Jamison and Pete Hixson are shown awaiting Skylab's re-entry into Earth's atmosphere on Wednesday morning. Reading more and enjoying it less as the official predictions changed and the United States moved into and out of range of the falling space station.

the apprehensive newswoman and terror-stricken newsmen awaited their fate by dividing their time between computerized news writing and editing duties and trips to a basement filing and storage area that just happens to have a thick concrete ceiling. The story has a happy ending (although we forgot to begin it with "Once upon a time"). Skylab fell elsewhere, and all the Quad-Citians lived happily ever after.

No funds for payroll

Employees of the Metro-East Sanitary District may have to discount their salary checks for 25 percent because the district again is without funds to meet its semi-monthly payroll.

The board of trustees approved a $10,000 two-week payroll during a regular meeting Tuesday, but Board President Russell Robinson of Granite City said the district is without enough money to pay the claims until an expected $50,000 is received from the U.S. Emergency Services and Disaster Agency as a reimbursement of funds spent by the district in flood control work last spring.

The district worked out a plan with the Cahokia Bank a month ago under which the bank agreed to accept district payroll checks for 75 percent of the face amount. The balance would be paid the employees after the district paid off the bank. The plan has not yet been used. The district's last payroll two weeks ago.

Robinson said another $45,000 is being sought from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency as reimbursements for work done in repairs to the broken main sanitary sewer line from Centerville to Cahokia. Tax payments should be removed soon, trustees were told, but the first income will need to be used to pay off approximately $700,000 in tax anticipation warrants. The district has cut its usual work force from 90 persons to 35 as a result of its financial problems.

James Spanos, district engineer, reported during the meeting that vandals had caused serious damage at the Cahokia pumping station Monday night. He said radiators were smashed, controls on heavy equipment were broken and tires and other objects were thrown into tanks. Equipment of the U.S. Weather Service kept at the station also was damaged and Robinson told Spanos to confer with weather service officials to determine if federal authorities may join in the investigation.

PURSE IS TAKEN

A purse was stolen from the living room at the home of Debbie Bury, 2665 Grand Ave., between 12:05 and 6:30 a.m. Tuesday and was recovered in an alley behind the 1400 block of 27th Street at 11:40 a.m. Tuesday. About $50 in cash had been removed. Entry to the home was believed gained by opening a window which had been previously broken.

Change penalty

James O. Wix, 28, of 1423 Third St., Madison, who was sentenced earlier this year to serve three years in prison after pleading guilty to burglary has had that sentence changed to 18 months of probation, 90 days in the county jail and the payment of $225 in restitution.

Wix first was sentenced to prison, but withdrew his guilty plea and Circuit Judge Horace Calvo agreed to vacate the sentence.

Wix then pleaded guilty a second time and Calvo ordered the new sentence. He was charged with a Feb. 3 burglary.

Dixon, who is from Belleville, credits himself with being one state official who takes an active interest in the affairs of Southern Illinois and is a frequent visitor and speaker in this area.

Fun in the summertime

I don't know about the rest of you, but I am having a grand time this summer. Even getting up in the morning and going to work is a pleasure.

We have been so lucky in that there haven't been too many 90 degree days. There is nothing quite so pleasant as wandering around on a nice sunny day, simply responding to the joys that Mother Nature provides.

I love to water ski. I learned to ski before I could swim. A friend of mine has a boat and one Sunday a bunch of us went to the lake and had a ball, skiing and enjoying the water.

Unfortunately for me, I spent a little more time in the water than I had intended. What comes easy as a child becomes more difficult with age. I told my friends that the boat was going too fast, but, in reality,

I got very tired very quickly. Now, picnics are a lot easier than water skiing and almost as much fun. I have taken the boys to many large picnics and have made up sandwiches and sat in their tent, enjoying the companionship of my children. Little chance for disaster there.

Then there's tennis. I love to play tennis. I am not Chris Evert Lloyd, not even close, but I enjoy hitting the ball back and forth. My forehead is more than a little rough, but my backhand is a killer.

I would love to take the kids fishing over at Horseshoe Lake State Park. One of these days, before the summer escapes me, I will have to buy a few fishing poles. Fishing is fun, even if you don't catch anything.

I remember the first time I ever fished ocean waters. I was nine and the family was vacationing in Daytona Beach. I was brave for my age and not at all frightened by the fact that I was throwing my line into a large body of water.

I got a bite. I thought it was a shark, the yank on the line was so hard, and I could imagine myself being scared by a huge set of teeth with eyes.

It turned out to be a blowfish, which frightened me when I got him on the dock; he began to grow, blowing himself up bigger and bigger. I will never forget that as long as I live, I thought for sure that the thing was going to get me.

Summer is full of fun things to do, and a lot of those things don't cost a lot of money.

You don't have to travel very far to do them, unless of course you are into deep sea fishing.

This is a great town for the kinds of things I like to do with summer. The only thing that I don't like is thunderstorms....but that's another story.

Contempt of court charge

George R. Churovich, 51, of 2830 Edgewood Ave., was sentenced to serve five days in the Madison County Jail after allegedly becoming hostile to Associate Judge George Moran Jr. in court in Granite City at 2:35 p.m. Tuesday.

Court officials said Churovich was attempting to get a legal ruling releasing a gun to him when he allegedly became hostile toward the judge. Granite City police were called and arrested him.

He was released on $2,000 recognizance bond at 6 p.m. Tuesday after requesting a hearing on the charge. The hearing was set for August.

Centrex phones at GC city hall

A new Centrex telephone system which will change the numbers of telephones in 16 Granite City departments will go into use Monday morning, City Clerk Robert Stevens announced Wednesday.

Installation of the new system, which will provide greater flexibility in handling incoming calls at the city hall, including the transferring of calls from one department to another, began six months ago under an agreement with Illinois Bell Telephone Co.

Stevens said that an amendment will be made to the present franchise now held by Illinois Bell to permit payment of slightly higher fees than now paid by the city.

City hall offices have had direct lines. Stevens said the new system will offer several advantages, including the "search" system which means an incoming call will seek out a line that is not busy in any single city department.

Additional cost will be minimal, Stevens said. The new phone numbers being changed will have a 433 prefix, replacing the 878 and 877 prefixes of the direct lines that are being replaced.

The new system will involve only those telephones in the city hall building.

Telephone numbers for the Fire Department and Police Department, both of which are in separate buildings, will not be changed, Stevens emphasized.

Car hit by rear wheels of trailer

Mrs. Mary Pinkerton, 42, of 2006 Washington Ave., was injured when her car was involved in an accident with a tractor-trailer driven by Gary L. Burns, 3127 Dodge Ave., at the curve at 18th and Benton streets at 9:55 a.m. Monday.

Police were told her auto was westbound on 18th Street at the curve when the rear wheels of the southbound trailer crossed the center line and struck the left front of the car.

Mrs. Pinkerton suffered small abrasions to her left arm and left knee. She was treated at St. Elizabeth Medical Center and was released.

STEAL LAWN CHAIRS
Mrs. Conchita Shemola, 2231 Washington Ave., said Monday a thief stole four metal lawn chairs valued at $75 from the rear yard at her home.

RESEARCHERS SEEK HEART VICTIMS

"Can heart attacks be prevented by lowering cholesterol?" is the question still asked by a team of University of Minnesota researchers conducting a study of the relationship between heart disease and cholesterol.

Most heart trouble results from atherosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries. A clue to the cause of atherosclerosis may be that cholesterol, a fatty substance, is found in diseased arteries. It is, however, still uncertain whether lowering cholesterol can actually prevent heart attacks.

The university is seeking persons aged 25-65 who have had one but only one heart attack in the past five years. Quad-Cityans interested in more information may call the University of Minnesota Hypertension Study collect at 612-376-4491.

The final session for girls and Mothers-Tots II, will begin Monday and run through Friday, July 27, at the pool, according to George T. Wilkins III, pool manager.

The Mothers-Tot II program will be from 11 a.m. until 11:30 a.m.

Information on classes may be obtained by calling the pool office 878-7466.

Wilkins also announced a two-week lifesaving class will begin Monday and continue from 9 a.m. until 11:30 a.m., Monday through Friday, ending Friday, July 27.

Other activities scheduled at the Wilson Park pool include a "platter party" on Friday, July 26, from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m. featuring the band "Jade".

On Saturday, July 28, everyone with a park identification card will be allowed in the pool for 25 cents.

BPW membership night Wednesday

All members of the Granite City Business and Professional Women's Club are being urged to invite a prospective member to a dinner meeting at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 18.

The event will feature a buffet style dinner at the Granite City Township Building, 2060 Delmar Ave. LaVelle Stephens, BPW president, said today. "Now is the time to bring a co-worker or a friend to a meeting and introduce her to the concepts of the Business and Professional Women's organization."

Any working woman living or employed in Quad-City area is invited to attend the dinner meeting, Mrs. Stephens added.

Cost of the dinner will be $5 per person and reservations may be made through Monday, July 16, by calling Carolyn Frye, membership chairman, or Ruth Walk, at 797-0109.

The program will be divided into two segments, the chairman said. Mrs. Annellen Smith, current second vice president of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women and immediate past state membership chairman, will discuss the importance of advancing membership and achieving goals set by local clubs.

The second segment will be presented by the Rev. Charlotte Zachary and Rebecca Zachary, who are involved in the Hospice program in the Granite City area.

Both BPW members will review the current status of Hospice and discuss its acceptance in the local communities.

Other staff members assisting the superintendent were Mrs. Denise Schmitz, general secretary; O. T. Potter, Sunday School Superintendent and the pastor, S. Boda.

The theme of the bible school has been "I Love To Tell The Story," a Concordia Publishing House production. A color filmstrip will show daily depicting the Bible message of the day. Following the Bible class sessions and a short recess, time was allotted for handicraft projects which were tied in to the Bible truths of the day. Projects will be on display tonight.

Final class sessions of the five-day Bible School, will be held Friday from 1 to 3:30 p.m. in the church fellowship hall. Approximately 100 will participate in this summer's Bible School.

Assault charged

Gregory Tingley, 19, of Rural Route Two, Box 200, Granite City, was arrested at 7:45 p.m. Tuesday and was charged with assault and reckless driving. He was held for military authorities on an allegation by relatives that he is absent without leave from the U.S. Marines.

Police were called to the home of Paul Burkhardt, 3249 Franklin Ave., on a report of a disturbance and Burkhardt alleged his son-in-law had caused problems and then left.

He returned briefly after police left and officers were unable to locate him. At 7:45 p.m. Tuesday, police saw Tingley's auto on Johnson Road and started to follow it.

When the driver saw a squad car, he allegedly sped up his car, but lost control and struck a curb, flattening the right front tire and nearly striking two pedestrians, the officer who was following the car alleged.

The driver allegedly fled on foot to Mercer Drive and then into an open field along the Namsdell Drainage Ditch where police caught and arrested him.

Clark orders probation in burglary case

Odin Venable Jr., 27, of 2000 Thirteenth St., has been sentenced to serve two years of probation and to make restitution of $108 after Venable pleaded guilty to burglary.

Circuit Judge Harold R. Clark pronounced sentence after Venable pleaded guilty to breaking into the Wayside Tavern building at 2160 Washington Ave., the morning of March 8.

A silent burglar alarm summoned police to the building and officers alleged finding two men inside.

Venable allegedly attempted to climb out an opening to the rear stairway as an officer broke open a nearby door.

Adopt-a-pet Saturday, shelter plans progress

By VALERIE EVENDEN

The Association for the Protection of Animals (APA) will hold its mid-summer pet adoption clinic from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. Saturday at its temporary shelter, located between Gasen Drugs and the Fabric Store in Nameoki Village Shopping Center.

Pets to be available for adoption Saturday, include: Four 6 week-old puppies, half sheltie and half cocker spaniel, two part schnauzer and part poodle puppies; a 7-month-old red female pup of mixed breed.

Two adult cats, one white with different colored eyes and one black, both of which are spade and declawed; plus a large assortment of kittens.

JoAnn Hommert, adoption supervisor, said the animals may be adopted by individuals or families.

A nominal fee is charged those adopting a pet, with the money collected used to help get medical attention for unwanted, neglected and abused animals, Mrs. Hommert explained.

Mrs. Marty Bridges, an APA officer, said plans for construction of an animal shelter are progressing.

The association was donated about half an acre of ground on Old Alton Road, south of Maryville Road, some time ago by a member.

The volunteer group, however, has spent more than two years trying to accumulate sufficient funds to construct a building and obtain necessary permits.

The Madison County Board notified the APA on June 25 that a zoning variance had been granted the non-profit organization. An on-site hearing was held June 6.

A water test on the property is being conducted this week and the issuance of a county building permit should follow, Mrs. Bridges said.

The shelter to be built at the site will not be a large structure, due to limited funds, the officer said.

Separate areas for dogs and cats, a small office and dispensary and isolation cages are among the initial requirements.

A Granite City building firm will construct the shelter's exterior and local contractor Paul Seebold will complete the building inside, Mrs. Bridges said.

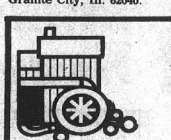

Until two years ago, the voluntary humane group operated a shelter for unwanted and abused pets at the Granite City Army installation for a period covering several years.

Since the shelter was closed, APA members have continued to aid animals in distress, frequently taking the pets into their own homes.

Adoptive homes were found for other animals coming to the APA's attention.

A fund raising drive to help construct the shelter still is under way.

Anyone wishing to contribute to the building fund may send a donation to: APA, Post Office Box 1311, Granite City, Ill. 62040.

NOW pickets for textile workers

Representatives of the Metro-East Chapter, National Organization of Women of Granite City, joined members of the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union of St. Louis in a show of support for a nationwide products boycott against J. P. Stevens, the second largest textile manufacturing corporation, during the weekend in St. Louis.

The boycott demonstration was conducted at Stix, Baer and Fuller stores.

Judy McNeilly, a NOW representative from Granite City, said the Stevens workers have been "struggling for 15 years to win union representation."

In addition to Mrs. McNeilly, also participating from here were Norma Mendoza, Bertha Sherman, Cindy Johnson, Susan Sherman and Liz Neeley.

Persons interested in helping the Stevens employees achieve union status are invited to attend a meeting of the Metro-East NOW Chapter at 7:30 tonight at the First Federal Savings and Loan, Edwardsville, or call 877-3650.

Man fined in traffic case

Hyman N. Gray, 53, of 1901 Spruce St., was fined $210 in court in Granite City Monday afternoon after pleading guilty to driving while under the influence of liquor and improper lane usage.

Police were called to the home of Mrs. Irma Gray, 3089 Wayne Ave., twice Sunday night and on the second trip alleged seeing an auto leave the area, turning into the wrong lanes of Joy Avenue from Wayne Avenue.

Officers stopped the car nearby and arrested Gray.

BATTERY ALLEGED
Cindy D. Serguson, 19, of 2301 Nameoki Road, lot 12, was arrested at 10 p.m. Tuesday on a battery complaint and was released at 1:05 a.m. Wednesday on $35 cash bond. Rhonda Hurt, 17, of 2424 Delmar Ave., said she went to a friend's apartment in Kirkpatrick Homes and the friend's babysitter struck her, kicked her nose with a knee and pulled her hair.

First inhabitants of region studied

The Press-Record on June 25 profiled the Highway 162 "dig" for Indian relics. Here is another viewpoint, written by Katherine Oriez for the Highland News Leader:

While the rest of us turn on the air conditioner and use our riding lawn mowers in the cool of the evening, a group of 18 young people live a very different life this summer.

They are the students and field director of an archaeological dig along a proposed highway expansion near Collinsville.

The Highland-based group spends nine hours a day in the summer heat as they excavate sites of early Indian life located in the American Bottoms. Most are college students or former students.

Dave Carlson, their field director, is a faculty member at Illinois State University at Normal.

The university is directing the project, funded by different federal and private agencies. Their home-away-from-home since last July has been the old red brick building at Main and Laurel. Offices, storeroom, lab, kitchen and combination dining-living room are located on the first floor with dormitories on the second floor.

Every morning they're up at 5 a.m. to be at their site before 8 a.m. Their work so far has been along six miles of proposed roadway just north of Interstate 70.

Recently, another group directed by the University of Illinois has received widespread publicity from St. Louis area newspapers and television. They are working south of I-70, excavating sites they believe will rank with Cahokia Mounds in archeological treasures.

"We haven't found anything yet big enough to get Walter Cronkite here," says Carlson. But the storage shelves at their headquarters are beginning to fill up with stone tools, broken pottery and its pieces of a long vanished civilization.

Right now they are working where a hamlet of horse buildings, housing six or eight Indian families, was located about 1050-1250 A.D. The soil there is much looser than the usual gumbo of the American Bottoms.

It could be worked with the crude stone hoes, spades and other tools found on the site as the Indians grew corn, beans and squash.

The house now under excavation was 8 to 10 feet by 15 feet, judging from the rectangular trenches and post holes at the site.

The upright posts that formed the walls of the building were interwoven with smaller branches and twigs, and then the entire structure covered with mud that dried to a hard surface.

The Illinois State crew has found the grave of one adult woman but no group burial place.

Carlson speculates they could have buried their dead at some mound long ago plowed under by farmers in the rich bottomland.

The Indians who lived at the site were from the same Mississippian period of Indian culture as the mound builders at the big Cahokia Mounds site.

When winter weather puts a stop to the excavations, there is time for research and study of what the summer's work has produced.

"We need much more time for research. Right now we are working so fast lab work will be needed to examine and tabulate what we've found," Carlson explains. He teaches one anthropology course at Illinois State but most of his work is research, such as he's doing with the Highland-based project.

The test sites for their work were chosen from an earlier survey along the entire route of the proposed 270 Bypass of St. Louis from the Jefferson Barracks bridge to the present I-270 on the Illinois side.

If the surface has not been destroyed or altered, broken bits of pottery and other artifacts indicate that the remains of Indian life may be found 8 or 9 inches below the "plow line" reached by farm implements.

Federal funding for highway construction now requires an environmental impact study, which includes location of important archeological sites.

The state Department of Transportation has contracts with groups, like the two working here from the U of I and Illinois State.

The workers are salaried employees. The Highland group, at present, is not receiving college credit for their work.

Carlson said he would have liked establishing a "field school" but there hasn't been enough time for it.

He trains new workers with experienced workers and finds that all the young people learn a great deal about archeological sites very quickly.

The Highland crew contributed to a "Ford Fund" and Mrs. Charlotte Sellers cooks breakfast and dinner for them, as well as supplying sandwiches for lunch.

On weekends, most of the workers go home, as does Carlson. "So my wife can remember what I look like," But even with the weekend breaks the work is hot, hard and usually tedious.

We asked Carlson if many of his workers quit after a few days on the job.

He says that he has a standard talk that he gives all prospective crew members.

It is so discouraging that most who "survive" his description of the hardships work out all right on the job.

Every year, more digs along the flood plain of the Mississippi River give more detailed knowledge of the cities, villages and farms of the Indians who lived here in large numbers before the first white men arrived.

Exactly how many centuries they lived here is a major question that the archeologists have been asking in recent years.

The city life of the big Cahokia Mounds center and the little farming villages surrounding it bear little resemblance to the lives of the Plains Indians who were here when the first explorers paddled up and down the Mississippi.

The first settlers didn't learn about these earlier mound-builders and farmers because the Plains Indians who replaced them were latecomers also.

As each section of the country was settled, the Indians were pushed west to new, yet unsettled hunting grounds.

There were no legends left to explain or describe these first inhabitants of this area. Their mounds were plowed under or later bulldozed away for supermarket parking lots.

At least this time, when the 270 Bypass is built, no important missing links with the past will be destroyed.

MR. AND MRS. BARRY COLLINS. They were united in marriage June 2 at Tri-City Park Tabernacle. The bride is the former Miss Becky Marlette, a daughter of Louis E. Marlette of Granite City and Virginia Boxdorfer of Madison.

Becky Marlette and Barry Collins marry

Miss Becky L. Marlette and Barry G. Collins exchanged wedding vows June 2 at Tri City Park Tabernacle in an evening ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Louis E. Marlette of Granite City and Virginia Boxdorfer of Madison.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Collins of Troy.

Songs for the ceremony included "Time In A Bottle" and "Evergreen."

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, selected a floor length gown of white organza over taffeta. Silk Venice lace with seed pearls edged the "Queen Anne" neckline and also trimmed the long sheer sleeves that were cuffed in a pleated ruffle.

Venice lace motifs were traced throughout the slightly gathered A-line skirt, which was hemmed with a deep border of crystal pleating that swept into an attached semi-cathedral train.

A lace covered camelot headpiece secured the walking length veil of imported bridal illusion edged with matching lace. She carried a bouquet of white and green carnations with yellow sweetheart roses.

Maid of honor was Miss Sandy Marlette, the bride's cousin. She wore a floor length yellow polyester knit gown with silk Venice lace edging the Queen Anne neckline. Lace also formed cap sleeves. The slim skirt

MR. AND MRS. GREG WALKER. They exchanged wedding vows May 5 at St. Joseph Catholic Church. The bride is the former Miss Cathy Lynn Kutosky, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Kutosky of Granite City.

Walker-Kutosky vows in afternoon ceremony

Miss Cathy Lynn Kutosky became the bride of Gregory Alan Walker in an afternoon ceremony at St. Joseph Catholic Church May 5.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Kutosky, 4621 D'Lynn Drive, are the parents of the bride. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Walker, 3237 Rodger Ave.

Father James Warren officiated at the double ring ceremony at 2 p.m. before an altar decorated with fresh spring flowers and candles. Large white satin bows and lilies of the valley marked the pews along the white carpeted aisle.

Music was provided by organist Mrs. Judd. Vocalist was Michael Weaver. Songs played and sung included "Sunrise, Sunset," "The Wedding Song" and the Lord's Prayer.

The bride was escorted down the white carpeted aisle by her father. She chose a traditional white gown with a yoke of Venice lace and seed pearls, outlined with a tiny ruffle.

Venice lace motifs traced the bodice and full skirt, which had matching lace on a flounce. The hemline topped with a small Venice ruffle and edged with a band of matching lace.

The fingertip veil with matching lace trim and motifs was secured by a lace and pearl caplet.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of silk pink roses, lilies of the valley and trailing ivy with satin and lace streamers.

Maid of honor was Mary Kutosky, the bride's sister, and bridesmaids were Marcia Walker, a sister of the groom, Rhonda Edmond, Kathy Mintman and Susan Schrader.

Cardiopulmonary services launched

By JINNY TUETKEN

EKG (electrocardiogram) and respiratory therapy are outdated at St. Elizabeth Medical Center. Not from the lack of modern equipment or a trained, qualified staff, but because their names don't accurately describe the wide spectrum of services these divisions provide.

Michael Range, director of EKG and respiratory therapy, announced that the new name of the two divisions will be Cardiopulmonary Services, as of this month.

"A lot more people are changing to this title. It's much more professional," Range believes.

The change of the name goes hand-in-hand with the hospital's name change to medical center.

In the past, the two divisions have been treated as separate departments. The name change will also help alleviate confusion about the functions.

Electrocardiogram comprises only 50 percent of the procedures done in its division. There are many other non-invasive heart tests, run outside of the body, under EKG and respiratory therapy.

This isn't the first name change for the two divisions, either. The department used to refer to its staff as "oxygen orderlies." It was then changed to Inhalation Therapy and then to Respiratory Therapy and EKG.

The name change will be easier for the public, said Range. "Now we're all-inclusive. People didn't realize how dependent the two were on one another."

Because the human respiratory and cardiac systems are interdependent on each other in a physiological sense, so, too, the therapies for these two systems are interdependent on each other.

Naomi Ronney gives devotional

The Progressive Class met at Second Baptist Church for its monthly meeting with Mrs. Naomi Ronney giving the devotional.

The opening prayer was given by Mrs. Naomi Burnett. The group repeated the 23rd and 100th psalms. Cards and fruit baskets were sent to the sick.

George Mitchell was in charge of the business meeting.

Those present were Lena Stephens, Naomi Burnett, Goldie Smith, Rachel Westphal, Virginia Ficker, Lois Jones, Mamie Stroud, Florence Paul, Virginia Taylor, Tillie Taylor, Lena Bonniar, Naomi Ronney, Melva Roberts, George Mitchell and Mina Duggins.

Closing prayer was by Mesdames Stephens, Jones and Bonniar.

Matthew 24:37 "But as the days of Noah were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be."

It may be shocking to you to be told that nearly all of the world's population was destroyed by a flood in Noah's day. The facts concerning this great destruction are plainly stated in the Bible. "And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually." (Genesis 6:5)

As in Noah's day, so shall it be at Christ's second coming. No morals, scruples, or principles are present. Every imagination of the heart is evil continually. We can no longer crime on the increase. Rape, murder, and thefts are so common today, we aren't even shocked at what tragedy is unfolding by the hour.

It will do us well to keep our house in order. His coming is at hand. Let us therefore be ready for in such an hour as you think not, He cometh!

He comes; perhaps today!

Plan for standby authority to ration gasoline could be costly and worsen the already bad supply outlook

Press-Record Bureaus — As long as the gasoline shortage was confined to California, no one seemed to care very much when Congress turned down the Carter administration's gasoline rationing plan in early May.

But now, with the phenomenon of filling-station lines rolling along the Eastern Seaboard as well as the Midwest, there is growing political pressure to grant President Carter his wish for standby authority to ration gasoline.

Apparently frustrated motorists would rather fly to hills they know not of, than bear the uncertainty and inconvenience of lining up for gasoline on odd and even days.

Despite the assurance that government-gasoline coupons would offer motorists a given monthly allotment, we must assume the government's proposed new role in the marketing of gasoline would be the surest way to have the shortages go from bad to worse.

As it is, the Department of Energy has managed to give the United States that which no other nation has — lines of waiting motorists at filling stations.

Some knowledgeable observers believe the shortage at the gasoline pumps has been greatly magnified because the DOE messed up the rationing it has already undertaken — the allocation of gasoline by states, and within states to various groups, including priority users such as farmers.

For example, the bureaucrats were allocating gasoline to California, until recently, on the basis of the 1972 population figures which failed to take into account the subsequent and large population growth.

It is expecting the impossible to believe that rationing would offer miraculous relief as the hair from the dog that bit us.

Under President Carter's original standby plan, which may or may not be altered this time around, the nation's motorists would be mailed entitlements to gasoline coupons for 90 days worth $25 billion.

Entitlements would be redeemed at banks (where new, long lines would form, for sure) because the coupons themselves would be too vulnerable to theft in mailboxes.

Entitlements would be mailed for up to three registered vehicles per household, thereby creating a sudden demand for junk cars and, for those who could afford them, special rationing advantages.

The brokers who sprang forward recently to buy and sell half-price airline coupons have given us a tiny preview of the brokerage on a national scale of the estimated $100-billion-a-year in "white market" gasoline coupons that would arise from rationing.

The administration estimates it would take six to eight months to create the necessary bureaucracy to impose gasoline rationing after Congress approved the standby authority.

And no one has ventured a guess about how many billions it would cost to administer such a vast program — money better spent on increasing gasoline production.

One thing, however, is certain and that is the enormous power and influence that gasoline rationing would confer upon the Carter administration over nearly every American in his or her daily life.

There should be no doubt, therefore, that the standby authority for gasoline rationing, once granted, will be invoked swiftly.

Deputy Energy Secretary John O'Leary has been saying that rationing "should be considered" perhaps by summer's end. He is departing, but most of the like-thinking bureaucrats will remain.

Sierra Club favors stricter hazardous waste law

Sierra Club Southwestern Illinois Piasa Palisades Group — The Illinois General Assembly has passed two hazardous waste bills which are now before Governor Thompson for signing. Both, signed with the general problem of hazardous waste facilities, such as the much-publicized Wilsonville site.

Senator DeMuzio's bill (SB 659) is supported by the Sierra Club, the Illinois Environmental Council, the Wilsonville Human Rights Survival Committee, Illinois Attorney General William Scott and other responsible advocates.

Representative Sharp's bill is considerably weaker than SB 659. For example, Madison and St. Clair counties would be exempt from the regulation that toxic wastes could not be dumped within 1 1/4 miles of a town without its consent.

DeMuzio's bill has provisions relating to hazardous waste siting, dumping fees, and liability. So does Sharp's bill, except SB 659 contains better protections, mainly because it requires applicants for a hazardous waste dump permit to first consider alternatives such as detoxification or recycling if either can be done technically or economically in a reasonable manner. This, we feel, is legislation that addresses this serious problem reasonably.

It is imperative that the governor sign SB 659. DeMuzio's hazardous waste bill, Mr. Thompson has already been quoted as saying that he may sign the weaker bill of Rep. Sharp because it is supported by the Illinois Chamber of Commerce and the Manufacturers Association.

Good Republicans helped Illinois develop some of the best environmental laws in the U.S. under the Ogilvie administration, and we hope this Republican administration can provide the same vision.

Venice 'seniors' deserve respect

To the Editor:

On June 28, a letter appeared in your paper criticizing a reporter of your staff and also those members of the Venice Park Board who voted in favor of the senior citizens' use of the recreation center during the time of the Summer Recreation Program.

It is my belief that the park board is here to serve all aspects of this community and that, in fact, a schedule changing could have allowed both the senior citizens and the recreation program to utilize the building during the summer months.

Furthermore, the article was written by a resident of West Madison who has no interest in the City of Venice and no program to offer for the children of his particular area.

I am truly sorry that a compromise could not be reached to please both the above-mentioned factions.

Contrary to the letter's statements about political gain and contributions, I have a child of my own and have as much interest in recreation for the children of this city as anyone; but my interests do not stop there.

These same children will someday be seniors themselves and will expect the same respect that comes with years of knowledge.

I challenge the previous letter writer to come up with a meeting place for the seniors that is as accessible as the Venice Recreation Center, and that has the necessary space and equipment, which will be given to them free of charge.

BARBARA HARRELL, President, Venice Park Board

A crisis made in Washington

To the Editor:

If we had wanted an energy crisis in this country, we could not have orchestrated it better.

Five years ago, politicians were introducing legislation to prohibit the small car because it was dangerous. We banned drilling for oil in Alaska because it would disturb the love life of the caribou.

We banned drilling in the Santa Barbara channel because it might get the beach dirty. We forbade drilling on government land because "that" belongs to the government, not the people.

We took a partisan position in the Midwest, and Arabs did just what you and I would have done under the same circumstances.

We ordained unleaded gasoline that takes more fuel stocks than leaded and produces a more deadly poison.

We continued a government mandate to drive trucks home empty.

We prevented a pipeline from being built inland from California.

We insult Mexico with its large reserves of petroleum. We freeze prices to discourage expansion of the oil industry at home.

We make it next to impossible to locate a coal mine. We stall nuclear power and eliminate the breeder reactor.

We penalize the automobile even though some get 28 to 40 passenger miles per gallon compared to 20.7 for the airlines and 9.89 for mass transit.

We make no serious moves to break up the OPEC cartel, but instead hire 17,000 people in the Energy Department. It's an energy "Mayday."

Washington is listening, and will be listening when it is June and July and August.

Next year, expect $7,000 in the Energy Department. W. M. BUESCHER

The world was full of beautiful sounds, and you could even walk through the woods and be alone

To the Editor:

Grandpa, did you ever drive a car?

I come close, son, when I was 30 years old. At this age I would be eligible for a driver's license.

What is a driver's license, Grandpa? This was a permit for qualified people to operate a vehicle.

What happened? Well, son, at this time all fuel to operate mechanical equipment was gone.

What did they do with all the cars? Some people kept them, but they would be some sort of fuel to run them. Sometimes, the people would sit in the cars and remember the trips they used to take to distant places such as vacations.

What is a vacation, Grandpa? There was a time, when there was enough room in the world for people to travel and relax and visit places of their choice.

Grandpa, were there really places with lots of trees and animals? There were many places called parks that were full of trees and flowers and wildlife.

Grandpa, will we always have to travel with one horse and a wagon?

I don't think so, my son. The animals are not surviving on the manufactured food.

Will we be walking like the poor people? Indeed, we will.

You must learn to walk barefoot to toughen your feet for the cold weather.

There have always been 80 billion people on earth? Absolutely not. There was a time when you could go to a river or a woods and be alone.

Grandpa, I read that long, long ago, people could hear without ear sensors. The woodmen of long ago could hear a twig fall. When there were birds, the world was full of beautiful sounds.

Grandpa, I would like more than anything to walk in the woods by myself.

So would I, son. BANE PRESLEY

Find, don't block, energy sources

To the Editor:

Why doesn't our government quit play-acting? Or, in other words, playing politics with certain groups, and instead working on ways of solving our energy problem instead of creating laws penalizing the suppliers and making things more difficult for the American public.

It seems everything done or suggested is never implemented and the government keeps taking two steps backward and really doing nothing to improve our energy situation.

There have been many proven suggestions for alternative sources of energy. Everytime a source is proven as an alternative energy, various agencies try to prove the negative factors instead of improving on the affirmative points and moving forward in the program.

It is about time the American people rise from their bed of passiveness and let our government know we want the power of control taken from our quasi-judicial agencies and given back to our elected officials.

Does it seem to you that there is something terribly wrong in this country? Here we are with, I am sure, some of the finest brains in the world and yet there seems to be nothing really done to solve our energy problems.

Everytime something is suggested, one of our quasi-judicial agencies steps in and stops the advancement of the proposal.

An example of this is our great coal, supply, which could give us tremendous relief in our energy supply through greater use in our power-mad environmental agencies won't ease the situation. Why can't our legislative branch take this power back and ease these requirements and new ways of filtering such waste can be invented or even possibly ways found of making use of the waste from the filtering process.

Second, let's get busy and advance any proven method. There are some, one of which was used in Ohio to power a plant for a hospital, and also West Germany has been using the gasification process successfully for several years.

Why do we let the preservation of a small fish halt the advancement of our hydroelectric power plants? Shouldn't the preservation and advancement of the livelihood of the American people come before that of a small fish?

It has also been proven by an operating project that solar energy can be operated at a reasonable cost.

Granted, the sun doesn't shine every day in certain sections of the world at certain times of the year. However, solar energy could still be used as an alternative source in many instances.

Are you getting the idea of what I've referred to earlier? We are wasting intelligence and inventive powers of thousands of people in this country.

If our government would seriously encourage their ideas and inventions and help to put the worthwhile ones into operation, many if not most of our problems in the field of energy and perhaps other areas could and would be solved.

Physician ideal choice for board

To the Editor:

There are reasons beyond count for my pleasure at the appointment of Dr. George T. Wilkins, M.D., to the Board of Trustees for Southern Illinois University.

We can be assured that in 1983, as the year of his hope, even longer — the board will have the expertise, understanding and just plain good sense of a member from one of the finest families in the metropolitan area.

I have known Dr. Wilkins for practically all of his life, and I am proud to consider him a good friend. So, my happiness that he will be serving the university I care deeply for is very personal.

More important, however, is that he is a dedicated professional who is deeply involved in serving his fellow doctors and the community in general.

Since his father was one of the main inspirations for the founding of the university over a quarter of a century ago, it would be a tribute to that Dr. Wilkins has grown up with this institution.

Not only was he present at the creation, but he was aware of the discussions that were part of the inspiration.

I can think of few people who are in a better position to recognize the importance of education to young people in principle and the value of a vital, responsive university in the region where he lives.

He understands the ideas that led to the university, and he has witnessed their transformation into reality.

If we break down the generation into a period of about 25 years, then SUIE is beginning to enter upon service to a new generation.

Dr. Wilkins Jr. is a splendid representative of this new generation. I am sure that he will also be appreciative of general system concerns and problems as SUIE seeks to affect some new and important changes.

The Medical School at Springfield will be well served by having such a first-rate professional practitioner on the board. I extend congratulations to the governor on his wisdom in making this appointment. I also want to express my thanks, because he has seen fit to choose someone from the area served by SUIE.

In closing, I must note that I owe my father, Dr. George Wilkins Sr., a great deal because he helped to send me on the path of public service.

He has truly been one of the greatest educational forces in the entire state, and I can think of no one better qualified to carry forward the torch of his dedication to learning, wisdom and public service.

I am sure that our new trustee will bring his own vision to his work as a member of the Board of Trustees.

Finally, speaking as chairman of the Senate Committee on Executive Appointments and Administration, I would like to say that there have been few occasions when an appointment has come to my consideration in which I have had such complete understanding of the candidate's qualifications.

With the confirmation of Dr. Wilkins as a new trustee, I have dawned for Southern Illinois University.

State Senator Sam M. Vadalabene

Senior citizens healthy and active

To the Editor:

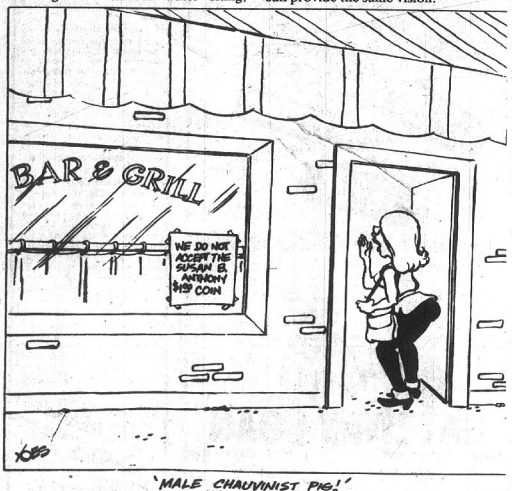

Beyond being interesting news, which it was, the Senior Olympics coverage helped to chip away the stereotype of older persons being always weak and frail rather than vigorous and healthy.

No doubt, it also encouraged more than a few of our senior citizens readers to become more physically active and thus healthier.

Thanks again for your cooperation and good work. If we can ever be of service to you, please don't hesitate to ask.

Five local players named to District All-Star team

By PETE HAYES
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY — Tri-City Post 113's American Legion baseball team had just moved into a tie with Edwardsville by beating that team 2-1 here Wednesday in eight innings. But manager Kirk Champion seemed more interested in his team's upcoming game Saturday against Fairview Heights.

"We're in first place now, and have clinched a playoff spot. We could still lose our next three games and make it. But I don't want that to happen. We need to keep up the momentum to do well in the playoffs," said Champion after Tri City had scored a run in the bottom of the eighth inning to edge Edwardsville. The win put the two teams in a deadlock for first place in District 22's North Division. Both have 10-5 league marks and have split the two games they have played this season.

Tri City starter Al Yount went the distance on the mound, but had to struggle out of several jams.

But Champion got back to Saturday's game with Fairview Heights. "We'll pitch Perry Lindsay," he said. "And I know they'll throw Eric Krill at us. We have to be ready." Krill defeated Glen Carbon Post 435 Tuesday night for Fairview Heights and has been named to the South All-Star pitching staff (see related story).

By winning its last six games in a row — and eight out of the last nine — Tri City has climbed out of a grave it dug itself into earlier in the season. Included in that streak have been five District contests. The team's overall record is 15-11.

The Tri City victory also proved a measure of revenge against Edwardsville. Two weeks ago, the Granite Cityans traveled to Edwardsville and received an excellent pitching performance from Lindsay — but managed only one hit in a 3-0 loss Wednesday. Tri City doubled its hit-output from the last time, getting two. The squad made the best of them in the second inning when it scored its first run.

Edwardsville's battery of pitcher Brian Holcek and catcher Mike Whitworth did most of the rest.

Leading off the bottom of the eighth with the score tied 1-1, Tri City catcher Mark Linhart was beamed by a Holcek pitch that ricocheted off his batting helmet. Linhart went down in a heap but recovered enough to run the bases. He was bunted down to second by shortstop Kevin Sykes and went to third on a passed ball.

After centerfielder Blake Ambush fled out to left field, Holcek threw a wild pitch with second baseman Bob Stegmeyer at the plate. Linhart scampered home.

"We didn't hit the ball real well tonight, but we did other things," said Champion. "I thought our defense was tough. Parker (third baseman Jeff) made a couple of nice plays and our outfielders were able to cut off some well-hit balls and keep Edwardsville to singles instead of doubles."

In the first inning, Tri City rightfielder Jim Thurman proved Champion's point. With two out and a runner on second base, Edwardsville shortstop Dan Allaria stroked a single in front of Thurman. The runner at second, Jamie Semanick, attempted to score on the play, but was gunned-down by a perfect strike from Thurman to Linhart.

Perkins wins state

BOLINGBROOK — Granite Cityan Dean Perkins came through with the state freestyle wrestling championship in the 154-pound division here Sunday.

Perkins, who will be a junior next year at Granite City High School South, was undefeated in seven matches. He pinned three opponents, won two decisions and won two by default.

Perkins was awarded the Al Lundy Outstanding Wrestler Award by the Illinois Wrestling Federation. He became the first wrestler from downstate Illinois to bring home the award.

One of Perkins' victories was a 19-7 decision over Amiliano Hernandez, the Illinois High School Association 126-pound champion a year ago. That win came in the semifinals and clinched the Lundy Award. In all, there were 22 wrestlers in Perkins' weight class.

Dean's brother Sam, the state high school runner-up at 148 pounds a year ago, traveled to the state meet but could not wrestle because of a dislocated thumb suffered in a recently completed Illinois Freestyle Team trip to the East Coast.

On the trip, Dean finished with a perfect 7-0 record, while Sam wound up at 6-1, the lone loss coming when he suffered the thumb dislocation and had to default. The Illinois wrestlers went to New York, Long Island, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Dean's state title will send him to the National Freestyle Championships later this month in Iowa City.

Even though he did not wrestle at the state meet, Sam Perkins has also been selected to take part in the National Tournament because of his performance on the East Coast trip.

Krill handcuffs Glen Carbon

FAIRVIEW HEIGHTS — A sixth-inning line drive hit by Mark Hill of Fairview Heights' American Legion team just eluded the glove of Glen Carbon's Bob Batey Monday. The hit drove in two runs, giving Fairview Heights the lead. But the hit may have had more significance than just changing the score.

Glen Carbon went on to lose the game 6-4.

The loss, while not mathematically eliminating Glen Carbon from entering its district's play-off, made the task much more formidable.

"Only four teams go on to the play-offs," Art Jovi, Glen Carbon's coach said. "Edwardsville is a shoe-in. We knew that to get in we'd have to win our last four games, and one of the other top three teams would have to lose one. Now, one of those teams will have to lose two games for us to get in."

Going into the sixth, it looked as if Glen Carbon would keep its play-off hopes alive.

Glen Carbon's two-run lead was first threatened, then destroyed by wild pitching and some key base hits.

Keith Burton, Glen Carbon's starting pitcher, got

John Pae singled, moving Knabekamp to second. Jacob walked, leading the bases. Pitcher Eric Krill walked forcing in Knabekamp making the score 2-2.

Then Hill delivered his single, and Fairview Heights took the lead as two runs scored. Jack Koenig made it 6-2 with his hit up the middle.

Although Jovi went to the mound before Fairview Heights did all its damage, Burton remained in the game to pitch to Jeff Eichenfelder, who he struck with a pitch.

Only then, after Burton was obviously worn weary, did Jovi replace him with Bob Ford.

"He (Burton) said he wasn't tired but we knew he was. We just wanted him to finish the inning because Ford hadn't had a chance to warm up."

In the top of the seventh Glen Carbon attempted to bounce back from the Fairview Heights' sixth was aided when Jeff Stamper led off with a walk.

Stamper made his way to second as a pick-off attempt went awry. A wild pitch sent him to third.

The next two Glen Carbon batters were retired. Then Larry Burns singled Stamper in and was joined on base by Mike Hubbard, who reached via an error.

But Krill ended the game by striking out Ford.

Glen Carbon took the early lead in the game, scoring in the second. Burns went to first on an error by the third baseman, advanced to second on Hubbard's single, went to third on a passed ball, then scored on Steve Doty's suicide squeeze bunt. Fairview Heights tied the score in the bottom of the inning when a sacrifice fly scored Jim Post before back-to-back singles, and an error put him at third.

Hubbard and Ford scored in the sixth giving Glen Carbon the lead again. Hubbard scored on an error off the bat of Tom Greco, who hooked up in a double steal with Ford for the second run.

'Outlaws' exciting to fans

By JEFF EAVES
for the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY — Defending World of Outlaws champion Steve Kinser of Bloomington, Ind. won his 12th WoO sprint feature race of the year and second at Tri City Speedway Wednesday night.

Starting on the first row outside, Kinser took off like a rocket. No one could catch him. He won by a full straight-away's distance over the second place finisher.

The race was halted twice because of accidents. The first came on the fourth lap at turn number three where three cars tangled. Speedway officials were forced to burn-off fuel which had leaked onto the track before the race could be resumed.

As the 4,500 racing fans looked on, Sam Swindell of Memphis, Tenn., put on a show. After starting on the second row outside, he passed Bobby Allen of Hanover, Pa. who was running third and passed Dub May who was in second place chasing Kinser. But just as he started making a move on the front-runner, Kinser's car blew its engine on the ninth lap, forcing him from the race. Allen took over second place.

On the 22nd lap, the second red flag came out. Chuck Amati of Freeman Spur, Ill. flipped his car end-over-end on the second turn. His car was demolished, but Amati escaped without injury.

Until his accident, Amati had made a tremendous move — all the way from 20th to third place.

Finishing behind Kinser were Allen, Steve Long of Indianapolis, Dub May of Hanover, Pa., Bob Kinser of Bedford, Ind., Gary Scott of Summit, Mo., Jack Hewitt of Troy, Ohio and Tony Weyant of Springfield, Ill.

Four heats and a dash were run prior to the feature race. The first heat was won by Allen. He was followed by Danny Frye, Kenny Schrader and Weyant. The second went to Steve Kinser. He was followed by May, Bob Kinser and Rick Ferkel. Allen Bar won the third heat.

Steve Kinser was the winner of the trophy dash. A 15-lap semi-feature was won by Amati.

The next WoO event at Tri City Speedway will be Aug. 22.

Granite Cityans contributing

EDWARDSVILLE — According to statistics released last week, three Granite Cityans are making a solid contribution to the success of the Edwardsville Civics semi-pro baseball team.

Jack Scarborough is hitting .376, has batted in 26 runs, has two home runs and has stolen seven bases. He has a slugging percentage of .537. His stolen base figure is tied with Bill Stolle's as the best on the team.

Jim Greenwood of Granite City is batting .391, has 25 RBIs, and has stolen four bases. His slugging percentage is .678. He has hit five home runs, second-highest on the team.

In the pitching department, Granite City's Stan Osterbur has appeared in four games and has a 1-0 record. He has pitched 19 and one-third innings, allowing 14 hits, walking seven and striking out 19. He has allowed six earned runs for an ERA of 2.85.

All records are after 29 games, which saw the Civics stand in with a 24-5 won-lost record.

On time or not, Mann can swim

By KEVIN ALLEN
of the Press-Record
GRANITE CITY — Paddlers swim club coach Denise Badke's yellow hair lay in soggy waves above her tanned shoulders.

"She was at the edge of the back pool at Paddlers, talking to one of her swimmers, who rested in the blue water beneath her."

"Kelly Mann? I don't know where Kelly is," she said. Her tone sounded perturbed. "He was supposed to be here at 12:15. It's 12:30 now."

Mann was late for practice — not too uncommon an occurrence. Badke went back to the swimmer in the pool.

When she looked up, she spotted Mann coming in from the gate. "Glad to see you could make it," Badke yelled out.

Mann nodded as he passed. Kelly Mann is 17 years old.

He has dark coarse hair and a deep, soft voice.

Two years ago, Mann, swimming for Paddlers, won five events in the Southwestern Conference meet. Last year, he came in third in two events and finished sixth in another. This year, who knows?

Mann has been a competitive swimmer for the past eight years. In the beginning, he did it for the pleasure. But as time went by, he discovered it was winning more and more frequently.

That was until last year. This season will determine if Mann will rediscover his winning form, or if 1977 was his peak.

Obviously, a swimmer can't just jump in the pool before a race and expect to cart home ribbons. It takes time to build up speed, time spent clicking off lap after lap.

"I'm in summer school right now," Mann said. "I don't get out until noon, so that's why I haven't been able to work out as much. "Right now, I work out about 10 hours a week for a meet, but school's over this week, so I should have more time."

Mann's 10 hours must be invested well though, at least this past week. Tuesday in Belleville against Dorchester Swimming Club, Mann placed first in the 100-yard freestyle event.

Despite having recorded his share of wins this season for Paddlers, and despite the fact that Paddlers has been winning consistently, Mann is still about two seconds off his times of last year.

But Mann, with slow, soft explanations characteristic of a young athlete, seems unbothered by his reduced times.

He is as willing, probably more so, to talk about soccer as he is about swimming.

Wherever he goes, the Paddlers' mascot, a member of the Granite City South soccer team. "Swimming is a good way to stay in shape for soccer," Mann said. "You use your whole body in both."

Mann started swimming in Joliet. He moved to Granite City and returned the sport at the local YMCA.

Later, when he began to swim at Paddlers, he joined the swim team. His brother Bob, who is 18, and his 20-year-old sister Laura preceded Mann at Paddlers.

Mann said even though Midwestern swimmers don't receive the attention those in California do, the Midwest is strong with swimmers.

Mann however, doesn't see himself going on to any great heights in swimming. "I'll probably go on to college," Mann said. "I haven't decided where though yet."

Tri-City floods Collinsville 3-1

Special to the Press-Record
COLLINSVILLE — Like the little Dutch boy plugging up the hole in the dike with his finger, American Legion Post 365 pitcher Jeff McDaniel strained to hold back the flood of Granite City base runners Tuesday night.

But a walk here, a single there, and an error here allowed just a trickle of Tri-City Post 113 runners to cross the plate. It was enough to give the visiting Tri-City team a 3-1 win and keep it in the thick of the American Legion District 22 race with a 10-5 league victory and 13-11 overall.

While McDaniel was struggling to hold back the 11 Granite City base runners that reached scoring position, Post 113's Dave Weil was leading a charmed life on the mound. An example was the second inning when Weil gave up a walk, two singles and a hard-hit ball to deep left . . . and no runs.

The crafty right-hander gave up just three hits, but was backed up by some tremendous defensive plays. Post 113 did commit five errors — two of them led to Collinsville's lone run in the fifth — but the defense was superb the rest of the time.

And one of those big defensive plays came in the bottom of the seventh on a play that Post 365 Manager Fred McClary is probably still yelling about. With a man on first, a line-shot to right by Barry Wilson was caught (trapped?) by Post 113 right fielder Jim Thurman on a fantastic diving

The ump called Wilson "out of your skull."

Post 365 Coach Jim Bone called the ump other things. "How can you win the darn ball game when the man drops the ball and they call him out?" fumed McClary after his team slipped to 10-9 and 5-10 in the league.

"They beat us, but they had help. The man picked it off to the ground and threw it. Everybody saw the ball drop but him." With that, McClary pointed to the umpire.

"I blew it," said the umpire. "But we're human, too."

Post 113 Manager Kirk Champion had a different viewpoint on the play. "The kid said he caught it as he fell and then caught himself with his glove hand — with the ball still in the glove. And that's what I think happened."

As it turned out, all this hubbaloob probably would have had no effect on the game's final outcome. The next Collinsville batter hit a perfect double play ball to the shortstop that would have likely ended the game.

But that seventh-inning controversy only pointed out Post 365's problems — when it rains, it pours. And bad breaks like that one were the order of the night for the snake-bitten Collinsville team.

In the second inning, right fielder Kirk Lambert was stepped on by Fred McClary and required three stitches. Then in the seventh, catcher Randy McEwen was injured, but stayed in the game. To top it all off, center fielder Vince Plantz had quit the day before because he said

Really, the only bad break that hasn't happened to Post 365 was the plummeting Skylab to wipe out the team and some members of the team warily eyed the skies.

Surprisingly, the game started like it would finally be Post 365's day for some luck. McDaniel gave up the first of his nine hits in the first, and then a walk and a double steal put runners in scoring position. But a ground ball (that almost bounced over shortstop Mike Heflin's head) ended the threat.

Then in the top of the second a single, a passed ball on a strikeout and a walk after Parker had singled and gone to second on an error.

A similar play had given Post 365 its only run in the bottom of the third. With two outs, Jeff Church had drawn a walk and then went to second on an errant pickoff move by Weil.

At that point, the mother of a Collinsville player said she better leave the game. "Maybe if I leave, they'll do something," she said.

Has so much bad luck made Post 365 superstitious?

Heflin then singled to center, but a good throw held Church at third. But when Heflin gambled and high-tailed it to second on the throw home, catcher Mark Linhart (who had thrown out three men stealing) winged the ball into center. Church trotted home with Collinsville's only run.

That was the only offensive noise Post 365 was to make. Maybe the woman should've been to get more popcorn.

Summers resolution stirs debate

JOHN "CHAMP" SUMMERS

By PETE HAYES

Sports Editor

of the Press-Record
MADISON — The Madison City Council Tuesday night passed a "unanimous" resolution, congratulating Madison native John "Champ" Summers, a major league baseball player with the Detroit Tigers. But the main story was the reaction it received from many city officials in attendance.

Summers did not play baseball while in high school in Madison, but tried out for the team at Southern Illinois University-Edwardsville after being discharged from the armed forces.

He had an illustrious career at SIUE and was drafted by the Oakland A's of the American League. After a five-year stay at Oakland, he was traded to the Chicago Cubs. From there, he went to the Cincinnati Reds, then to Indianapolis (the Reds' farm club) before being traded to the Detroit club earlier this year.

But the resolution was accepted with bitterness by several Madison city officials because of an article that appeared this spring in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. In the article, Summers was quoted as saying he did not owe the city of Madison anything — that neither Madison nor Granite City (where he later moved with his parents) had ever done anything for him.

"I think it's a shame," said one disgruntled city official who asked not to be named. "I don't know why it was wanted."

Another city official said, "Some of us went to school here with the guy. He never played baseball in high school. He played basketball and tennis. He was a real little guy. Then went into the Army and came out a man."

"He said he doesn't owe this town anything. So why should we turn around and honor the guy?"

The vote on the resolution was unanimous, with Mayor Mike Sasysk and two aldermen absent.

But some officials in attendance didn't want it to be unanimous. "I kept telling my alderman to vote against it," said one observer. "But I don't think he could hear me."

Another unhappy citizen summed up his feelings. "The way I look at it, he (Summers) made it and I didn't. But I've got nothing against him."

"We sit in the tavern watching him on TV. He's up there and we're down here. We sort of admire him for going as far as he did. Then he comes out with something like what he said in the St. Louis papers. I can't figure it out."

"I know a lot of people here who helped him out along the way."

Manpower employment training program is implemented by county

The Madison County Office of Manpower Development has implemented the Public Employment, Assessment and Training Program which is designed to provide services to 80 economically disadvantaged and unemployed persons.

The services provided are identified in the title of the program and will assist in the preparation of jobless persons for unsubsidized employment, an official said.

The program differs from other Office of Manpower Development public service employment programs in the manner in which it is supervised. Four journeymen laborers are functioning as supervisors for groups of 15 laborers.

The 15 laborers are further subdivided into work crews consisting of four laborers and one lead person.

The 15 workers can then work together or separately in groups of five, depending upon the work being performed.

In addition to the supervisor, two Office of Manpower Development Career Counselors, two Office of Manpower Development Career Counselors have been assigned to work specifically with the PEAT Program and provide any necessary counseling, while assisting in the movement of the participants from the program into unsubsidized employment, a spokesman explained.

At present, funds are only available to continue the program through the end of September 1979. If additional funds are received and the program proves successful, then continuation is possible, according to Dan Churovich, director.

The participants in the PEAT Program are to be taught the importance of coming to work every day, on time with a healthy attitude toward their job.

After acquiring these good work and safety habits, they may be selected for vocational training, public service employment, or jobs in the private sector.

They will be assessed by the Singer evaluation system as to vocational aptitude before selection is made. It is expected that the PEAT Program will cut down on dropouts in Vocational Training and give employers in the public and private sectors better employees, the spokesman said.

A byproduct of the PEAT Program is that the county, townships, cities, and special tax districts benefit by having tasks performed that otherwise could not be done.

Having the foremen from the various labor locals allows the business agents of the locals first hand knowledge of the projects so that there is no infringement upon their occupations, Churovich noted.

State traffic toll up

During the first six months of 1979, Illinois had a total of 844 traffic fatalities, two more than in the same period last year.

There were 480 rural fatalities, 10 less than last year.

During the month of June, there were 188 Illinois traffic fatalities.

In the first six months of 1979, District Eleven, with headquarters at Maryville, had a total of 66 fatalities, nine less than the same period last year.

The district tallied 10 fatalities during June. In a continuing effort to reduce traffic accidents, the Illinois State Police have again utilized CTCP (Concentrated Traffic Enforcement Program) in May and June.

During the 4th of July holiday, the State Police participated in Operation CARE, (Combined Accident Reduction Effort).

Effective July 1, 60 new moving radar units have been put into operation in a further attempt to gain voluntary compliance with the 55 miles per hour speed limit, which not only conserves fuel but can reduce injuries and fatalities, a spokesman said.

Tavern and driver sued

A five-count lawsuit has been filed in Madison County Circuit Court against the 15 Acres Tavern in Mitchell and Larry G. Webb of Rural Route One, Granite City, who allegedly was driving an automobile which struck and killed 16-year-old Eric Morgan on Maryville Road near Route 203 July 11, 1978.

The suit does not involve the Larry Webb who resides on Sunset Drive and is not related to the Larry Webb who was in the accident.

It is alleged the tavern served intoxicating liquor to Webb prior to the accident.

The suit seeks $20,000 each from the tavern for Eric Morgan's father, Larry, his mother, Nancy, and his brother, Erin, for their loss.

It also seeks $500,000 in actual damages from Webb and $250,000 in punitive damages. The final count seeks another $500,000 from Webb.

Inducted Into Navy

Wayne Allen DeLozier, 18, of Granite City, was among 80 area men inducted into the U.S. Navy prior to a Cardinals and Pirates baseball game at Busch Stadium last week.

DeLozier, a lifelong resident of Granite City and a 1978 graduate of Granite City High School North, has been assigned to basic training at the Great Lakes Naval Training Base and then will attend schooling on structural aircraft maintenance.

He is the son of Gerald and Marian DeLozier of 4537 Walter Ave. Prior to enlistment, he was employed at the International House of Pancakes and at Charlie's Restaurant.

Youths break entry lights

Police are planning to question two Granite City youths who were responsible for removing and breaking two large lamps and bulbs, valued at $100, which illuminated the entrance to the Harvey Place apartment complex near Sara Street.

The incident involving the lights occurred at 10:45 p.m. July 5, after which the mother of one youth was informed of the vandalism, but apparently took no action.

A second report was made Monday. The youths responsible are believed to be 16 and 13 years old.

Stoma specialists in state keep busy

Of the 1,000 nurse stoma specialists in the entire country, two of them are working at the University of Illinois Hospital, Chicago, and residents from throughout the state are visiting them.

Kathleen Burns, R.N., E.T., (Enterostomal Therapist), and Carolyn Ptasiński, R.N., E.T., manage the hospital's Stoma Clinic. It is the largest non-private clinic of its kind in the state and the only "open" clinic in the Chicago metropolitan area, if not the state.

"Anyone can come and register for the clinic," Miss Burns said. "They don't have to be a clinic patient here or a patient of a physician at the University of Illinois at the Medical Center."

And patients do come to the clinic from the Chicago area and the remainder of the state to see them.

"We are seeing people who have been referred to us by physicians in private practice," Miss Burns stated. "In fact, physicians themselves often call us at the clinic for information."

The Stoma Clinic, located in the Urology Clinic of the University of Illinois Hospital, is involved with patients who are about to have or already have had an ostomy, a type of surgery required when a person has lost normal function of a bowel or bladder due to birth defect, disease, injury or other such disorders.

The ostomy allows normal body wastes to be expelled through a surgical opening, called a stoma, on the abdominal wall. The surgery, which may be permanent or temporary, calls for patient use of special equipment, including a bag that attaches to the abdominal opening.

Ostomies come in three different forms: colostomy, (an opening in the colon), ileostomy (opening in the small intestine) and urostomy (diversion of urine from the bladder).

Miss Burns and Miss Ptasiński follow-up patients "from beginning to end." Their efforts include advising and making recommendations to the surgeons performing the ostomies, and assisting hospital staff nurses in providing post-operative care for ostomy patients.

Also, "instructing the patient in the management of his or her own ostomy, as well as working with the patient's spouse, parents and members of the family." This includes patient rehabilitation and adaptation to the changes in body form and function.

"We try to help ostomy patients cope with their new self image," said Miss Burns. "The emphasis is heavily on the psychological."

"Not only do the patients have to deal with the obvious physical changes such as the wearing of the ostomy appliances and the loss of bladder or bowel control, but also the social aspect."

She added that the emotional support she and Miss Burns can give patients is often "the most rewarding aspect of our jobs. Our main goal is to show patients they can live normal lives."

"Patients identify us as sources they can talk to," Miss Burns said. "Sometimes they will call to discuss problems unrelated to their ostomies."

The nurse specialists' work does not end when the patient leaves the hospital. Rather, they provide long-term follow-up care to make sure the patients are adjusting or improving physically, emotionally and psychologically.

"Patients see us once every two weeks for the first two months after hospital discharge," Miss Burns explained. "After that, they may visit the clinic once every four to six months."

As part of their follow-up care, the two nurse stoma specialists actually help in the healing process. "For example, we can assist patients in their management of any skin problems that develop near the stoma site," Miss Burns said.

Both often "catch problems before the patient would normally see a physician." Problems can include a stoma opening prolapse ("falling out") or a hernia on the abdomen immediately next to the stoma.

Stoma Clinic work also requires the nurse specialists to keep up-to-date on new ostomy equipment and accessories produced by an estimated 20 to 30 major manufacturers.

CHARTER ISSUED

A domestic corporation charter has been issued to Paul Stanley Investments, Ltd., by Secretary of State Alan J. Dixon in Springfield. P. S. Podraski, 2345 Woodlawn Ave., is listed as president of the construction corporation, with 20 shares of common stock having no par value.

Charge 2 found walking in alley

Police are continuing to investigate an incident occurring Monday in which a man and woman were arrested in an alley at the rear of the 2400 block of East 24th Street.

Officers went to that location in response to a call that two people appeared to be tampering with a vehicle. Officers alleged seeing a man and woman walking away carrying a waste basket.

The man reported the owner of a station wagon parked nearby had given permission to use the battery from that vehicle to start his auto.

The owner of the wagon was contacted and advised police that no such permission had been granted.

Cary H. Whitehead, 25, of 2408 E. 24th St., was charged with criminal trespass to a motor vehicle.

He pleaded innocent at 2:50 p.m. Monday and was released on a $2000 recognizance bond, pending further investigation.

Shirley Whitehead, 23, of 2903 Kirkpatrick Homes, was charged with unlawful possession of cannabis. She allegedly had five marijuana cigarettes in a black vinyl case in her possession at the time of arrest.

Mrs. Whitehead failed to enter a plea and was released at 12:50 p.m. Monday on notice to appear, also pending the outcome of the investigation.

Steals purse from restaurant

A man was seen running from behind the bar at the Barrel Restaurant, 19th Street and Delmar Avenue, Monday, by two employees who locked the doors in an effort to catch the intruder.

Apparently he escaped through a rear door that was locked earlier and then found to be unsecured, police said.

Missing was a black purse belonging to Mrs. Mattie Beier, an employee. The purse contained $148, cash, medication and personal papers.

The thief was described as being in his late teens, thin, five feet, eight inches to five feet, 10 inches tall, with long stringy blond hair and wearing faded jeans and a faded red plaid shirt.

KICK DOWN DOOR

Bon Bach, 1201 Rhodes St., reported Monday that a burglar kicked down the front door at his home and stole a portable color television that cost $500.

Hurt in crash Rainfall below normal in first six months

James Settle, 22, of 2234 Nameoki Road, was injured when a pickup truck in which he was a passenger was involved in an accident at 25th and Adams streets early this week.

He was a passenger in the truck of William Hunt, 2837 Circle Drive, which collided with the auto of Walter Gasparovic, 2252 Adams St. Settle struck his right ear on the truck's door and was treated at St. Elizabeth Medical Center for a cut to his ear which was sutured and he was released.

Rainfall in the Quad-City area during the first six months of this year dropped below normal for the period after June precipitation totaled 2.36 inches, or 1.29 inches below the 4.27-inch normal fall for that month.

Rain fell on seven days of June, with the heaviest precipitation of the month occurring on June 9 when 1.28 inches were recorded. Rainfall of .86 of an inch was recorded on June 29 and .65 of an inch on June 24. Precipitation on other days of the month included .05 of an inch on June 7, .01 of an inch on June 8, .12 of an inch on June 10, and .01 of an inch on June 14.

Until the June rainfall, the area had been running slightly ahead of the total normal rainfall. For the first five months of the year, precipitation totaled 14.67 inches, compared with a normal for that period of 13.80 inches.

Records show rainfall exceeded the normal in three months of the first half of 1979, and was below normal in a like number of months. January rainfall in the Quad-Cities was 2.35 inches, in excess of the normal of 1.98 inches for that month. February, however, produced only 1.66 inches of rain, down from the normal of 2.04 inches.

March precipitation amounted to 3.41 inches, compared with a normal of 2.34 inches. Nearly half of the total rainfall for the first half of the year occurred in April when precipitation for the month totaled 6.11 inches, compared with a normal of 3.71 inches.

In May, rain measured 1.14 inches, well below the 3.73-inch normal for that month.

South band squads at camp

In preparation of the 1979-80 football and basketball seasons at Granite City High School South, two groups of young women are participating in special training programs this week.

Returning later today from the Illinois State University campus at Normal will be members of the South Band Flag Squad.

The five-day instruction program started Sunday and is being sponsored by the Marching Auxiliaries of America of Fort Worth, Tex.

The girls worked at perfecting flag techniques and learning new flag routines.

Prior to leaving the ISU campus today, the South high representatives will be judged and awarded ratings on their individual and collective performances, according to Joe Owens, band director at South high school.

Julie Toothill and Susan Seilheimer are squad captain and assistant captain, respectively.

Departing from Granite City today is the South Dixie Dolls Pom Squad, whose members will spend five days at summer camp on the campus of Illinois Wesleyan University at Bloomington.

The South high students will be taught new pom routines and learn how to develop their skills in dance improvisations.

Many of the new routines will be incorporated into programs presented during the coming school year.

Squad members also will be competing for top awards in such areas as routine originality, most improved squad and showmanship squad.

Leading the South Dixie Dolls this year are Loretta Heagy and Patti Sharp, co-captains.

Probe shooting report, can't find victim

An anonymous caller who refused to give his name told Granite City police during the weekend that he had shot and wounded a hitchhiker who had tried to rob him, and that he had dumped the man out of the car.

"I thought I'd let you know so the man don't die," the man was quoted as telling police.

Authorities said the man told them he had picked up a hitchhiker who later pulled a gun and attempted to rob the driver.

The driver said he slammed on his brakes at Maryville Road and Highway 162, took the gun away from the hitchhiker and shot him in a shoulder. He then pushed the man out of the car and drove away, he told police.

Police went to the intersection and searched the area, but could find no indications of a shooting or find a victim, they reported. Police notified St. Elizabeth Medical Center of the incident.

Crawford Venice campaign chairman

Jack Buck, chairman of the Gateway Chapter, Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, has appointed Dale Crawford to the 1979 Breath of Life chairman in Venice. In accepting the chairmanship, Crawford expressed hopes for the annual fund-raising drive, which will begin with a door-to-door march.

The Breath of Life campaign supports research to find a cure for cystic fibrosis, the leading genetic killer of American children. There are 120 CF centers in the U.S. which provide specialized medical care for these children.

In 1955, when the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation was established, few children survived to school age. Today, thanks to advancements in research and care, a child with CF, who is diagnosed early and promptly begins comprehensive medical care, has a 50 percent chance of living beyond the 15th birthday.

Scouts spend day in the park

DAY CAMP for cub scouts means lots of fun. On Monday the scouts were in Granite City at Wilson Park, participating in their own version of Olympic competition. Above, the obstacle course provided plenty of exercise for all involved. Joe Whyers, shown at left throwing the disc, did his best for a medal while his companions, most of them from Pack 141, Granite City, looked on. Scouts from all over the area attended. The session ends today, with another to begin on Monday.

Oscar, Tony and Obie winner, Martin Balsam will become Carroll O'Connor's partner in beer and belly-laughs, in "Archie Bunker's Place," the new title of "All in the Family." Balsam will play Marty Cline, partner in the neighborhood bar that keeps Archie away from home, so that viewers won't see that the rest of the cast has left the show.

Earl Holliman has hung-up his shoulder holster on "Police Woman," but he hasn't hung-up acting. He plays a blue-collar family man who must adjust to the confusion of a sudden marriage break-up in CBS's "An Unmarried Man," now filming in L.A. Also starring is Carrie Snodgrass, who's trod this path before in "Diary of a Mad Housewife," for which she received an Oscar nomination.

Funnyman Mel Brooks, whose film hits include "Blazing Saddles," "Young Frankenstein," "Silent Movie" and "High Anxiety," will star in his first TV special for NBC. The show will feature segments from his films, including scenes from his next movie, "The History of the World, Part I." Stars from his past movies will also participate, as will Gene Shalit, whom Brooks refers to as "my favorite cinema critic-personality."

Brooks got his start in TV as a writer with "Your Show of Show." Later, he and Buck Henry developed "Get Smart." He describes the special as a "melange of current insanities and past pluses-perfects." But don't reach for the popcorn yet. "The First Mel Brooks Special," is set for the fall of 1980.

Sammy Davis Jr. will make his dramatic debut on daytime television next month. He'll play an ex-convict working for the police, in five episodes of "One Life to Live."

Save this pull-out TV Data section

Davis is taping his episodes the week of July 30 in New York, and they should air a couple of weeks afterward. Davis became involved with the show when he stopped by the studio to see his old friend Al Freeman, Jr., who plays Ed Hall in the soap. As a result, the two, who once starred in "Golden Boy" on Broadway, will be working together again.

Grant Goodeve gets a break from "Eight Is Enough" for a vacation on "Fantasy Island," where he plays a daredevil stuntman.

Byron Allen received two bits of good news this month. He graduated from high school and was offered a co-hosting spot on NBC's "Real People." Allen made his TV debut on "The Tonight Show," and went on to the other talk shows. In the past four years he has played numerous Los Angeles clubs. At the age of 14, he was writing material for Freddie Prinze and Jimmie Walker.

But Allen's covering himself. In the fall not only will he be seen in "Real People," he'll begin college.

Ed McMahon, who has tested his acting skills in such pictures as "Fun With Dick and Jane" and "The Incident," will round out the cast of "The Kid From Left Field," starring Gary Coleman. McMahon will play the owner of the San Diego Padres, who go from a losing streak to a winning one, through a little boy's help.

For reasons not even understood by the gods, NBC has changed the name of their new police drama, "The Force," to the tongue-twisting "Eisched," the name of the lead character played by Joe Don Baker.

Joining the cast of "A Far Turn," a special two-hour "Police Story" starring Karen Black, are Eddie Egan, Don Murray, James Whitmore Jr. and Frank Sinatra Jr.

Donald Sutherland stars as a man caught up in a baffling mystery that leads to a terrifying confrontation, in "The CBS Tuesday Night Movies: Don't Look Now," July 17. (REPEAT)

Tuesday Weld stars as a flashy woman with a controversial reputation who is accused of murdering her child, in "A Question of Guilt," Wednesday, July 18, on CBS. (REPEAT)

LORE OF THE PAST. Lisa Flaughter of Edwardsville, left, Walter Davis of Madison, Delmar Woolsey of Worden and Dee Christoff of Granite City listen to a diary reading and see the world of a pioneer woman in pictures that she took on glass plates. The program is part of the eight-week summer Youth Conservation Corps project at SIUE.

Hard times? What about this area back in 1888?

By MARY BRASE

"A baby was born this morning and Papa sold a calf."

Grandmother Merle Snedeker of Bunker Hill settled into her lawn chair near the freshly-cut locust post fence to read aloud from the meticulous script filling the lines of the prayer-book size diary in her lap.

Her grandmother, Lillie Emma Dike Barnes, wrote the first entry on Jan. 1, 1888, three years after she married John Newton Barnes and moved to the farmhouse north of Bunker Hill.

But the 22 Youth Conservation Corps workers, including granddaughter Lisa Funkhouser of Godfrey, sitting around Mrs. Snedeker at the Whiteside cemetery at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville understood every word.

The workers had finished fencing the historic grave site under the honey locust trees on the hill a day earlier as part of an eight-week summer conservation project. Rubbings of the smaller tombstone showed it marked the grave of another unnamed infant.

"Son of William and CC Reddish. Born Feb. 8, 1868. Aged 11 days."

To learn more of the era, Mrs. Snedeker and guitar-playing daughter Mrs. Peggy Funkhouser of Godfrey brought the diary to read and the pictures and the tools and the songs to share from that earlier time.

Many babies didn't have names and didn't become a real part of the family until they survived the first six months, Mrs. Snedeker told them. The nearby grave, identified only as "infant son," was typical, she said.

A larger obelisk stone marks the first generation of Whitesides in Illinois, a century earlier. The teenagers sat in the grass around it under a July sun and looked out over the American Bottoms as they listened.

"Jan. 1. Freezing outside. I washed."

It sounds simple, but for Grandma Lillie, that meant hanging part of the clothes in the empty upstairs bedrooms and the rest on the line outside until they froze solid and the wind blew them dry.

"Worked on a crazy patch," she continues. "Grandma could have taught us all something about conservation," Mrs. Snedeker reminded the younger generation.

Her ancestor sewed odd-sized scraps of material together to make a square for a quilt and then traded them with the neighbors for variety. Old dresses became nightgowns by cutting off the sleeves and collars. Later, when the material was too ragged, it was cut down to a slip. She wanted nothing.

"Sold a load of corn for 96 cents. Bought pigs."

For extra money, grandmother Lillie sold magazine subscriptions and offered a special discount for single issues after the next month's edition came out.

All the families saved newspapers and magazines and traded them around with the relatives, she told.

Other entries tell of her life in the matter-of-fact business of the day. "Cut out flannel shirts, began to sew: Baby had colic all day. Made brine for pigs' feet. Finished shirt and ironed after supper. Stuffed sausage. Churned three hours. Washed out diapers for Elsie."

On Sunday, the routine changed. "Played organ. Read sermon."

Later in the spring, she "put manure on asparagus. Newton cut the hedge."

The young workers smiled when they heard about the Tests, taxes among topics of educators

A variety of educational issues will be examined at the annual conference of the Illinois Association of Regional Superintendents of Schools and the Illinois Office of Education today and Friday at Springfield's Holiday Inn East. Harold E. "Gene" Briggs is the Madison County regional superintendent.

State Superintendent of Education Joseph M. Cronin will address the regional superintendents this evening at the conference banquet.

Some of the subjects scheduled at the two-day conference are the analysis, assessment and control of asbestos in schools; alternatives for replacing the corporate personal property tax; status of minimal competency testing; handling of truancy problems; and school legal problems.

Other activities planned for the conference include presentation of the "Friends of Education" awards by Cronin to legislators who have made outstanding contributions toward enactment of legislation helping school children in Illinois.

Conference activities for Friday include two teachers who will be honored as environmental teachers of the year, one representing elementary education and the other grades seven through twelve.

Muirheid will head education board

Members of the State Board of Education this week elected Donald F. Muirheid of Decatur as their new chairman during a business meeting that opened the board's annual three-day conference, held in Tusca.

Muirheid replaces Jack Witkowski of Chicago as board chairman. Witkowski has held the position since the inception of the State Board of Education in 1975. The term for chairman is two years and a member cannot serve more than two consecutive terms.

Muirheid, one of the first members appointed to the board, has served as chairman of the board's Equal Education Opportunity Committee. The committee is charged with the task of making recommendations to the full board on matters concerning school desegregation.

Some of the past leadership roles for Muirheid include president of the Illinois County Officials Association, executive board chairman of the Illinois Supervisors and County Commissioners Association, and county and state chairman for the Red Cross.

A farmer and member of the Farm Bureau, he also has served on the Governor's Council of Economic Advisors.

Other members of the board elected to posts were Carol N. Johnston of Des Plaines and George Howard Thompson of Frogtown.

Carol Johnston replaces Charles M. Long of Wagoner as the board's vice chairman and Thompson replaces former board member Gertrude R. Monroe of Collinsville as secretary.

The new officers' terms will expire in July 1981.

Kokomo not forgotten

Tell the press and you tell the world.

"I just don't know how the word got around so fast. After the story of the 'Kokomo' reunion was in the Press-Record on Monday my phone has not stopped ringing," Howard Bolton, organizer of the reunion of Kokomo residents, said.

"A lady named Esther Kindle, at least that's her maiden name, from Venice, Fla., is flying in. Her sister saw the article, telephoned her and Esther called back to tell her sister to pick her up at the airport."

"We have also heard from former 'Kokomo' residents now living in Arkansas and Kansas that they are coming back to visit. We should have a real fine time," Bolton said.

A reunion of "Kokomo Village" residents will be held at Wilson Park shelter No. 1 at 12 noon on Sunday.

The "village" of 11 houses was located at the east end of the coke ovens on Edwardsville Road (Route 183) between the 1920's and early 1940's.

In 1943 the houses were torn down.

Bolton thought there should be a reunion, so he and a few other former residents decided it was time.

Persons are bringing their own food and the afternoon will be spent "just catching up," Bolton said.

Information may be obtained by calling Bolton at 876-2442.

The pet show . . .

LAI D BACK CAT. Friskie, a feline friend of Mickie Willis, was the only calm and serene animal at the kids' pet show. Mark Hinson (top left) was a little surprised to learn that his dog Cotter would really rather have been somewhere else.

. . . part of summertime's fun

Puppy love, kitty love, frog love. Frog love?

Kids and animals just seem to go together naturally, like ham and eggs. So what could be a better way to spend a morning than to parade around, showing off a favored pet?

The folks at Wilson School in the Granite City Park District's summer recreation program have turned the pet show into an annual event. Hence, the second annual Wilson School Summer Recreation Program Pet Show. Now that's a mouthful.

The youngsters were cheerful competitors, but their animals were another story.

King had to be kept from eating Fluffy the cat, and Prince Twinkle did not dig his hat. But the frog stole the show when he decided that the confines of his box were just too confining.

The categories were a little odd.

There were the traditional best looking and best trained. But when they called for the best dressed, things got a little strange.

There were ribbons for the winners, and their owners accepted them proudly. Prince Twinkle, a cute, fluffy little dog, took most of the first place honors. His owner could have taken first place herself, a beautiful little girl named Michelle.

Things got a little wild when Lady, a cross between a Spitz and something, took off down the street after another dog, the other not even being a participant in the show.

But, of course, it was all just for the fun of it. Part of a summer full of fun activities going on at five area schools and the Park District Recreation Center.

Marian Doly, director of the program at Wilson, came up with the pet show idea last summer. It went over well then and possibly even better this year.

It was truly an enjoyable morning at Wilson, in spite of the bit of misbehaving on the part of the animals.

Believe it or not, the only one that seemed to be calm and serene that day was Friskie the cat, plus Miss Doly, who claims that after the pet show, she can handle anything.

A FROG IN THE GRASS is worth what? Herman, a spotted friend of David Deshaizer, showed the crowd his disappearing act while, Chita, dressed up like the wolf in Little Red Riding Hood (top right), was perfectly happy when her owner, little Shelly Nash, posed her for the judges.

PATRIOTIC DISPLAY of three, small American flags at the front of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer (Alice) Essington, 529 Washington Ave., Venice, on the Fourth of July. The flags have an historical significance as they were given to Mrs. Essington's mother, Mrs.

Elizabeth Durer by President Harry S. Truman during a parade through the city of Venice. He stopped the car in which he was riding and handed the three flags to Mrs. Durer who has since died. The flags have been displayed each national holiday since that time.

Taxi fares increased

An ordinance increasing taxicab fares in the first five zones of travel is to be brought before the Granite City Council on the recommendation of the council's traffic committee.

The committee headed by Alderman Roy Poulos of the Third Ward recommended to the council last week that it permit an across-the-board fare increase of 35 cents after committee members met with representatives of the Checker Cab Co.

City attorney Lance Callis was asked to prepare an ordinance detailing the new fares in the five-zone area. The present fare in the first zone is $1.15.

Poulos told the council that cab operators have been confronted with rising prices for gasoline, parts and repairs and that there has not been an increase in cab fares in the past several years.

Council members last week also rejected a proposed mileage expense fee for James Stack, assistant street superintendent who works out of the sanitation department.

Alderman Sam Whitmer who served as mayor protem during the meeting in the absence of Mayor Paul Schuler, proposed that Stack be paid 15 cents per mile for use of his own car while on city business. Whitmer said Stack is not provided a city car and frequently uses his own car in his duties.

Alderman Warren Decatur objected to such an arrangement on grounds that it would set a precedent under which many other city workers might seek the same compensation. Whitmer replied that "It's done in many cases," and cited several jobs in which mileage fees are paid.

Whitmer's motion for the mileage payment failed to receive a second and therefore lost.

Everett Morlen, alderman of the First Ward, moved that Stack be paid a flat fee of $25 per month.

Alderman Paul Fisk remarked, "I'm sure I wouldn't use my own car and run the wheels off it for $25 a month."

Morlen's motion lost, however, by a vote of 8 to 2. Alderman Decatur then observed that in the discussion about mileage payments it had been noted that some of the younger manpower workers use city cars.

"I wonder if anyone has ever checked on our liability in this," Decatur said. "With these young fellows driving city cars, I wonder how many of them have proper drivers' licenses and what our liability status might be." Other council members agreed it was a matter that should be checked, and Daves agreed he would look into it.

Alderman Poulos called for tighter reigns on the collection of fees for weed cutting, licenses for yard and garage sales and other city costs which he claimed the city collects only about one-third.

"Why do we have these laws if we don't do anything about them?" he asked.

The council was informed that SCA Services which handles the city's garbage collection contract through the Milam-East Division has applied to the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency for a permit to collect several additional types of waste for the Chain of Rocks landfill. The notice was placed on file.

The council also approved a request by Chief of Police Ronald Veizer for an expense allowance of $287 for Officer Friendly Fred Hoffman to attend the first national law enforcement Explorers' conference in Lansing, Mich., July 24-28. The aldermen granted a request by the Illinois Power Co. for an excavation permit for 14 openings at Adams and 19th Street and Benton and 19th Street for replacement of gas lines.

The Illinois Department of Revenue reported the city has been allotted $62,377 in state income tax revenue for the month of May.

Faces two charges

Daniel R. Hill, 29, of Rural Route One, Box 1349E, was released by Venice police last week on $150 cash bond.

Hill was charged with unlawful use of a weapon and illegal transportation of liquor.

Hill gave police permission to search his van and they allegedly found a .22 caliber derringer in a pouch on the console and open beer near the drivers seat.

TAVERN FIRE

Arson is suspected in a fire outside the Little Dover Inn Tavern, 2542 Missouri Ave., which caused only minor damage early this week. A small fire started on the west side of the building which the Venice Fire Department extinguished. The owner reported she had trouble with a customer about one hour earlier and told him not to come back. Firemen were unable to determine how the fire started.

Doobies due here

Four rock musicians, the Doobie Brothers, are set to perform at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Mississippi River Festival in the campus of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

In the past nine years, the Doobie Brothers have continued their tradition as innovators in the field of rock music despite changes in personnel.

With their current album Minute By Minute and singles What A Fool Believes and the title track attaining top positions on the national trade charts, the Doobies are still trend-setters.

The current LP highlights the writing and vocal talents of Doobie mainstay Patrick Simmons and their newest member Michael McDonald.

With McDonald on keyboards, Simmons on guitar, Tiran Porter on bass and Keith Knudsen on drums, the combination is said to result in one of the most unique sounds in rock music. The sound is a composite of jazz and rock, flavored with driving rhythm and blues.

The group's songs have strong vocal stylings and carefully crafted lyrics, critics say.

Appearing with the Doobie Brothers on July 13 will be the pop-rock group Night.

Night is a newly-formed group with leader Chris Thompson; Nicki Hopkins, piano; Stevie Lange, female vocalist; Robbie McIntosh, guitar; Billy Christian, bass; and Rick Marotta, drums.

They recently came out with the single, Hot Summer Nights, which is from their first album, Night.

$144 CASH TAKEN

The purse of Vickie Elmore, 742 Twenty-Seventh Place, containing $144 in cash and personal papers, was stolen from a back room of the United Way office, 2011 Edison Ave., the victim reported at 11 a.m. Friday.

Police are seeking a youth 16 or 17 years of age who had been seen earlier in the building.

Named to honors program

Twenty honor students at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville have been admitted to the Dean's College as new members of the undergraduate honors program during the spring quarter of 1979.

Dean's College is open to outstanding freshman, sophomore or junior students with a 4.5 grade point average who have the recommendation of five former classroom teachers.

The college offers a flexible academic plan suited to the needs of the individual student under the guidance of a personal adviser in the major field of study, regardless of the university's general requirements.

Included is Granite Cityan Philip W. James, biological science and medical science, advised by Nancy R. Parker, associate professor of biological sciences.

STEAL CYCLE

The motorcycle of C.W. Martin, 617 Chouteau Ave., Mitchell, was stolen late last week from a shed at the rear of his home. The 1978 Yamaha, 250 cc. cycle is valued at $1,225, the owner said.

Plan trip to ball game

A senior citizen trip to Busch Stadium for the 7:35 baseball game between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Atlanta Braves on July 26 is being planned by the Granite City Park District.

Tickets are $2 and must be purchased at the time of registration, which may be done at the park office or at the Granite City Township Hall, 2060 Delmar Ave.

Buses will leave the Anchorage Homes Recreation Center at 6 p.m., Kirkpatrick Homes Recreation Center at 6:15 p.m. and the Wilson Park ice rink at 6:30 on the evening of the 26th.

YOUTH TREATED

Larry Bochantin, 17, of 916 Greenwood St., Madison, was treated at St. Elizabeth Medical Center for cuts to both arms. The youth was involved in a fight inside Wedgy's Ice Cream parlor, 1700 Edwardsville Road, Madison, at 9 p.m. Sunday, according to police. He was pushed through a large window by another youth, it was reported.

RANSACK TRAILER

The mobile home of Madeline Scott, 202 Holiday Mobile Home Park, was broken into and ransacked last week. Entry was gained by forcing open a door. Nothing is known missing.

CONTOUR ANALYSIS EXAMINATION FOR VICTIMS OF CHRONIC OR ACUTE PAIN

A free Contour Analysis examination is being offered for people with acute or chronic pain by the chiropractic offices listed below. People who suffer with backache, bursitis, arthritis, neuralgia, nerve pain, neck pain, muscle pain, bone pain, etc. are invited to receive this free examination.

Contour Analysis enables taking a three-dimensional picture (called Moire photography) of the topography of the surface of the spine to detect spinal stress deviations. This analysis will be correlated with leg deficiency, patient symptomatology, and levels of spinal tenderness. An analysis of this type can reveal such things as normal and abnormal stress patterns, apical curvature, muscle spasms, muscle imbalance, spinal distortion, and scoliosis.

This analysis, including consultation with the doctor is being offered to the public at no charge. Anyone wishing to receive this free examination may telephone Dr. Reinhardt's office directly for information or an appointment.
